Voter registration process halted

You can't get a new voter registration card in December.

But the law says you need one.

No voter registration materials are being mailed from County Tax Assessor-Collector William P. Buck's office until notice is received from Secretary of State Mark White's office.

Mailing of new registration forms to Texas voters was required by a 1975 state law. But a suit filed in October by three Grayson County voters has delayed the mailing. The Texas Civil Liberties Union and the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund are backing the suit.

Senate Bill 300, the new voter registration act, calls for a total new sign up every two years. The provision was made to trace persons who have moved and to purge lists of deceased voters.

It required that 1975 applications for new registration cards be mailed to all registered voters between November 5 and December 31, with applications to be returned by January 31.

Witnesses before a three-judge federal court in Austin testified Tuesday that the law would produce declines in general registration throughout the state, especially in minority areas.

As a result, the court expanded the Civil Liberties Union's restraining order into a preliminary injunction pending another Austin hearing Saturday.

Local officials are concerned that any decision upholding the law may not come through until too late to expedite the December 31 deadline.

Aggies subdue Longhorns

Marty Akins was mostly on the bench as the terrific A&M Aggies hung a 20-10 win on the University of Texas Longhorns at Kyle Field Friday afternoon. It was a terrific battle throughout, with the Aggies always holding a slim lead from early in the first quarter.

The win puts pressure on the Aggies and the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, who meet in a nationally televised game next week, with the winner going to the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

Poor quality reproduction of pictures is still bugging us, a statement that would bring no argument from our readers, but I can assure you that it is a problem that is getting our undivided attention. That fancy piece of equipment, designed to make picture reproduction easy and uniform, is in operation and in a short time our people should be using it with good results. Hang on, please.

OUR RECENT STRAW VOTE (which ended 0 to 0.) in this column flushed out two of the potential candidates — Bill Lott and Tim Maresh — both, of course, of Georgetown. Maresh came by Wednesday to announce his intentions. Lott called later to say he definitely would be in the race. Nothing from Taylor where Jack Barkley is said to be calculating.

County Commissioners, shocked at the cost of providing ambulance service from four bases — Taylor, Georgetown, Round Rock and Cedar Park — are trying to devise some system to save money. The solution they are now eyeing is to eliminate Round Rock, giving extra responsibility to Cedar Park and Georgetown. From an expense standpoint, Round Rock is the least efficient operation in the county.

Round Rock is understandably upset at the prospect and I share the concern.

IT IS A DARN SHAME that our federal government, by ridiculous guidelines, got us into this costly mess. Commissioners throughout the United States ought to get together and tell the Feds that, "since you are running the show, go ahead and fund it," and see how the ball bounces.

I told Bill Williams that the program ought to be financed by the Washington crowd and run from local post offices, which are highly dedicated to public service. Leo Wood, who was within earshot, commented that he didn't think that would be a good idea. "By the time Williams got through combing his hair," Leo claimed, "the victim would bleed to death."

Williams, a trim, athletic, good-looking guy takes considerable care with his grooming, from hair to shoes, and absorbs some good-humored kidding. During the summer he wore a white suit part of the time, which gave one of the fellows cause to dub him Sir Lancelot. And that fostered that idea that the post office just had to be Camelot!

It's a great life if you don't lose your sense of humor.

Or, simply adjust to a world of nuts.

Electricity price hike due

City expected to pass along LCRA surcharge

Get set to see approximately two dollars added regularly to your city electricity bill from January through at least April.

That's the word from city officials, who were told last week that the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) somehow managed to shortchange itself $41,199.42 on Georgetown's account since July of 1974.

LCRA produces electrical power for Georgetown and 29 other municipal and electrical cooperative customers. The city distributes the power on its own lines to local residents.

In a meeting November 21 in Austin, the Authority told City Manager Leo Wood and Councilmen Harry Gold and Wiggy Shell that it needs the $40,000-plus to stay on an even financial keel and to go to the bond market next year to construct coal-fired generating plants.

To get the money, LCRA officials proposed to add one penny and seven-tenths of a cent (1.7 mills) per kilowatt hour to its customer's monthly bills until the loss is recovered.

But LCRA also offered a discount of $1.75 per $100 paid to any customer which agreed to submit the amount asked immediately, along with its November bill from the Authority.

In Georgetown's case, the discount would amount to six percent, meaning the city would actually pay only $38,728, a saving of $2471.97 over long-term payment.

The city decided the discount was well worth immediate payment, and Mayor Joe Crawford said Wednesday that $38,728 will be drawn from a $50,000 utility reserve account and paid to LCRA, along with the amount charged the city for electricity use from October 25 through November 25.

"We put aside the reserve funds for emergency use," Crawford explained, "and I say this is an emergency."

LCRA said the shortfall resulted from constantly increasing costs of natural gas to fuel electricity-generating plants.

According to the Authority, the "fuel adjustment" charge it has been tacking onto bills for over two years (and which is passed along to city customers) simply didn't keep pace with the amount it was charged by the Lo-Vaca Gathering Company for the gas.

From the billing period ending July 25, 1974, the Authority said, through the period ending October 25, 1975, Georgetown was charged $630,507.71 for fuel adjustment.

LCRA says the amount which should have been charged, to allow it to break even, was $671,707.13.

The city agreed that the Authority needs the cash, and said it will make the lump-sum payment.

Which satisfies LCRA, but leaves the city a little short.

To refill the city coffers, Crawford said, the Council will be asked December 8 to approve a 2 mill charge to be added onto monthly electricity bills.

Assistant City Manager W. L. Walden said that on an average residential consumer's usage of about 1000 kwh per month, the "surcharge" would amount to approximately a two dollar hike.

The exact amount per month will vary with usage, but electricity bills will rise noticeably.

Walden said the hike would probably be added to city bills in the form of an addition to the fuel adjustment charge, which is a percentage of the "base rate" the city charges for electricity.

In past months, the fuel adjustment rate has gone as high as 100% of the base rate charge.

City Manager Wood did not rule out the possibility that the rate might climb that high again, but said that the city has tentatively planned to eliminate the 2 mill surcharge during any month in which the fuel adjustment charge is 100% of base rate or above.

Walden gave the following example to illustrate the effect of the surcharge: if you used 1000 kilowatt hours of electricity from October 15-November 15, you paid $32.94 for it.

If the fuel adjustment rate of 100% in effect during that month period remained the same, and you once again used 1000 kwh, you would pay $34.94.

At that rate, Crawford speculated, it might take five to six months to make up the city's loss.

But he added that it could take longer, and expressed the hope that the surchage would be low enough to avoid a burden on city customers until it is dropped.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS — J. H. "Buster" Compton and hospital administrator Ken Poteete discuss plans for next week's kickoff of the Georgetown Area Hospital Development Fund Drive. Compton will head the campaign to generate $350,000 in contributions to secure a Farmers Home Administration loan for construction of a new hospital.

Hospital fund drive set

Preparations for a $350,000 fund drive to construct a new Georgetown Area Hospital are almost complete, and the bandwagon should be ready to roll next week, drive chairman J. H. "Buster" Compton announced Wednesday.

Compton said, "We contacted potential campaign leaders throughout the western part of the county this week, and so far not one person contacted has turned me down."

That opens the door, Compton continued, to get the Hospital Development Fund drive under way this week and hopefully to secure a $2.95 million construction loan from the Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) by March.

The loan, if it can be secured, would fund construction of a new 60-bed hospital east of IH 35 and north of ranch road 2243.

FmHA officials reportedly have committed themselves firmly to the loan, if the Georgetown Hospital Authority (GHA) can come up with $350,000 to fulfill the agency's "community participation" requirements.

Under the 1974 Rural Development Act, the FmHA was given authority to loan money for the construction of hospitals.

But FmHA officials have stipulated that the Hospital Authority must come up with 25% of a $2.95 million construction loan, or about $740,000.

Assets owned by Georgetown doctors, including the present hospital, the 6-acre site of the proposed hospital, and medical equipment will earn the GHA $426,000 immediate credit toward the 25% figure. During the time it would take to construct the hospital, GHA officials say the value of the credit would rise to $525,000, leaving the Authority approximately $225,000 short of the required amount.

The hospital itself would be a three-story structure east of I35 and north of R.M. 2243, which would accommodate at least 60 beds. Eventually the hospital could be expanded to include two more floors and up to 150 beds.

According to a master plan for the facility, additional medical buildings could also be constructed nearby, and a doctors' clinic would be built adjacent to the hospital.

If the FmHA approves the loan, the Hospital Authority would pay the debt service with revenues from hospital operations.

Ken Poteete, adminstrator of the present Georgetown Medical and Surgical Hospital, said plans are being finalized to contact residents in Georgetown, Jarrell, Florence, Liberty Hill, Leander, and other west-end communities for their support.

Week's news in a nutshell

A PROPOSED $40 PER MONTH SALARY INCREASE for all county employees and special adjustments not to exceed $140 monthly will be discussed at a public hearing December 8 at 10 a.m. Williamson County Commissioners decided during a special meeting Monday.

Final action was taken during the meeting to advertise for new heating and air conditioning systems and duct work for the renovation of the old Farmers' State Bank building west of the square on Austin Avenue. The building will be used by Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

Carpentry work dividing the interior into offices has already begun, but lighting, heating and air conditioning costs were above expected amounts.

UNITED WAY'S 1975 CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFULLY REACHED its primary goal of $18,141 with $500 to spare this week.

"We are extremely pleased," said Drive Chairman Frank Hubbard, "but we want everyone to know that we're not finished yet." Hubbard explained to know that we're not finished yet." Hubbard explained that the drive is really a never ending one, and those who have not been contacted and wish to give may do so at any time.

"We feel this drive has been a successful one, not just because we have come near the budget goal, but also because over one hundred people participated in the effort. It was a community response to community needs," said Linda Graves.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE A 200-PLUS-POUND BELL fished up from the San Gabriel River? And cracked, like a certain fixture in Philadelphia?

Well, that's what Dale Conway of Georgetown found Saturday when he happened to gaze over a wall along the river's west bank in San Gabriel Park.

Police received a report Monday that the Phi Delta Theta fraternity at Southwestern University was missing a bell and thought it might be the one Conway found.

Phil Delta Theta member Robert Skinner confirmed that report and said the fraternity would try to identify the bell.

Maresh and Lott will run for District Judge in 1976

Two prominent Georgetown lawyers stepped firmly forward this week and announced their intentions of running for district judge in the democratic primaries of 1976.

Municipal Judge Tim Maresh made it official by signing up at the courthouse and turning in a standard political announcement to county newspapers.

Bill Lott telephoned to say he would run but his official announcement would not be made for several weeks.

At least one other lawyer in the county, Jack Barkley of Taylor, the senior member of the Barkley and Cutcher law firm, is believed to be seriously considering the race.

All three men have had considerable experience in county politics and are regarded as successful and capable lawyers.

Announcements that long-time encumbent Judge Kirby Vance has no plans to run in the May 1 primary have left the office wide open to other candidates.

"District Judge Kirby Vance has made it known for some time that he will not seek re-election to his post and has personally told me this week that he plans to retire at the end of his present term," Maresh said, adding "Judge

Twice in 17 days the President's life was threatened. And what was the response in Congress? "Curtail the President's public appearances!"

Not "Lock up the loonies." Congress wants to "lock up the President."

TWO SCREW-LOOSE WOMEN pulled guns, and what was the response in Congress? "Write another law!"

What we should be doing is enforcing the laws we already have against the "misuse" of guns.

First, let's understand that new laws limiting gun sales would not have disarmed Patricia Hearst or Squeaky Fromme or the frustrated Sara Jane Moore.

The weapons available to Patricia Hearst were already outlawed—but outlaws got them anyway.

Squeaky Fromme's gun was not a "Saturday Night Special": it was a Colt .45 sold as "army surplus" in 1913.

The .38 used by Sara Jane Moore was not bought over-the-counter. It was bought earlier the same day from "a private collector."

SO ANOTHER LAW would not have prevented these social misfits from arming themselves.

For society angrily to "get mad at the gun" is as silly as blaming the sun for your burn.

The recent rash of madness derives precisely from that kind of "substitution" lunacy.

"Pay attention to me," the sickies cry out. "Somebody please notice me!"

And if they demand that attention at the point of a gun, it's because the headlines say that is the quickest way.

Shall we then pass a law against headlines?

Cook County, Ill., averages a thousand major crimes every day.

Cook County's State Attorney Bernard Carey says the most vicious and dangerous criminals are the armed robbers.

THEY ARE RESPONSIBLE for most of the state's "unsolved" killings. And upwards of 70% and perhaps as many as 95% of all armed robberies are committed by "repeaters."

Carey is urging his state's legislature to lock up permanently — that means a mandatory life sentence which no judge could set aside—anybody convicted of armed robbery for a third time!

With plea bargaining and the misapplication of insanity pleading and the potential for payoffs, there is no better way to expedite the judicial process than with mandatory sentences.

And there is no more certain way to stop repeaters from repeating.

AFTER PATRICIA HEARST was in custody, KGO-TV in San Francisco received a letter expressing support for "Sister Tania." The letter advised Patty Hearst to play it cool, to be patient, "while her father's lawyers bail her out."

It is with such disdain that lawbreakers are sneering at the legal leniency which amplifies to grotesque distortion the rights of wrongdoers.

If mandatory prison sentences for specific crimes are not a cure-all, they would help stop the bleeding.

CIA recruiting: a keyhole view

By Benjamin Welles

Washington

For the last 10 months the CIA has been battered by more bad publicity than in all 28 previous years since its creation in 1947. Has this hurt recruiting?

No, say agency officials — though they concede that the school year has only just begun and that recruiting trends may not be clear until January.

The CIA says it hires "less than 500" young men and women officers a year (apart from clerical staff) of the 4,000 or so who apply. Its size and budget are officially secret, but a good guess would be 15,000 people and $600 million.

Who, then, are the college and graduate students and the young men and women already in jobs who want to join the CIA?

"There's been a marked change down the years," explained a senior official. "In the '50s they came mostly from the Eastern Seaboard and they were products of prep schools and Ivy League colleges. Now they come from all over the country."

In the '50s — when the cold war reduced U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations to black and white — many recruits came from military backgrounds. Duty came before self-questioning; patriotism before doubt. Now, since Vietnam and the Watergate scandal, the CIA's recruits are more "intellectually challenging," says one agency official.

"They ask tough questions: 'What do we do, why do we do it?' They probe, they challenge us. We realize they face stiff peer pressures. So when they do decide to join — they've weighed it and thought it out. They're committed."

Each year top CIA officials at headquarters near Washington list the special skills — engineers, chemists, economic geographers, area specialists, linguists among others — that they will need over the coming year and in what numbers. The lists go out in autumn and spring to regional recruiting offices: Los Angeles; Portland, Oregon; Austin, Texas; Denver; Chicago; New York; and Philadelphia. Headquarters here handles recruiting for the South.

CIA recruiters from the regional offices contact area university-placement offices — and even advertise in leading newspapers, including the New York Times whose revelations of "massive, illegal" activities last December led to investigations both by Vice-President Nelson A. Rockefeller's commission and by Senate and House committees.

Applicants were once interviewed on campus, but anti-Vietnam war feeling ran so high in student circles in the late '60s and early '70s that the bulk of the interviewing process was quietly shifted to nearby federal office buildings.

Applicants now must fill out a 17-page, personal-history form and if accepted must wait up to six months for the intense screening process. Most of those accepted then undergo a year's training (with certain exceptions such as engineers, scientists, etc.).

Not all the CIA's work is "spying." Of

AUSTIN — Sitting and watching the news from governmental agencies, one is almost daily required to ask, "What's going on here?"

You read a news story one day that the Texas Youth Council, which has just given its Mountain View facilities at Gatesville to the Texas Department of Corrections, is busy deciding where to help build "community facilities" to take care of youthful Texans who have violated laws.

Then you look in the Elgin Courier and find notice published of a final environmental impact statement on a new Federal Youth Center to be built at old Camp Swift in Bastrop County.

It is to contain what sounds like dormitories of 50 to 60 rooms in a "village-type complex." In all, it will provide rooms for about 300 youthful offenders who are serving short sentences for law violation.

The 300 young people are to be gathered together in this rural setting for education, vocational training and counseling, designed to "increase the social effectiveness of the inmates and to provide them with the necessary skills that will reduce the prospect of their engaging in further criminal activity.

That, of course, was supposed to be what they were doing at Mountain View and at Gatesville State School. A Federal court held that it was better to close down such a facility, and to develop "community" facilities to keep the young offenders close to the families which had failed to keep them on the straight and narrow.

Now we find a Federal agency, building what sounds a whole lot like Mountain View or Gatesville, a few counties away.

It quite naturally makes one wonder whether the Federal agency or the state agency or the federal court is the more advanced. At the very least, what it shows is that experts in the field of juvenile correction differ. Perhaps it would be wise to get some sort of a Coordinating Board, State and Federal Juvenile Corrections Systems.

It could supervise the swapping back and forth of rural correctional and training facilities as the views at the two of the competing agencies change.

It might have some problems. The Bastrop Federal facilities are to have a 12-foot high fence with patrol roads inside and electronic surveillance.

It is possible that when the views of the Texas Youth Council change, because of a change of membership by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, that a 14-foot fence would be required, with bloodhounds or poodles instead of electronic surveillance. In such an event, substantial amounts of taxpayer money could be saved by having the Coordinating Board, with its $200,000-a-year budget, preventing the new agency from tearing down the 12-foot fence and building one of 14-foot height. It could have a public hearing and get evidence about the increasing tallness of teenagers, and decide whether 14 feet is now needed to contain them.

Even if this Coordinating Board should cost $200,000 a year, it could in all probability be funding 50-50 by Federal and State money. Thus, it would be more likely to be influential on the agency which is changing its mind at the moment, be it Federal or State.

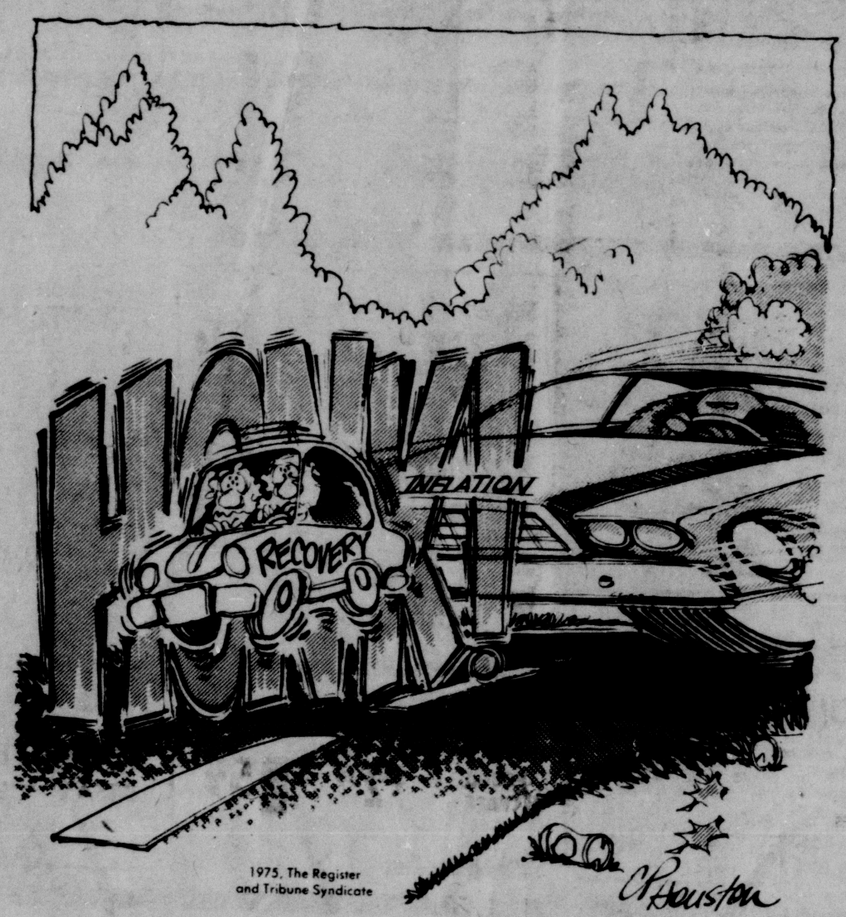

It might also be well if this Coordinating Board would have veto power over research projects in this field, and thus reduce the fluctuations in Federal and State thinking on the subject of where best to store young people who have become intolerable in their families and home towns.

Without such coordination, it is entirely possible that the Federal and State penal authorities might fall into the same track at the same time. Then it would be necessary to build a second Mountain View-like "school" for young offenders. And, until the normal oppositeness of viewpoint returns, all of those "community facilities" would be vacant.

The employes of the "community facilities" would have to be quickly retrained to the other point of view, that it is better to keep young offenders behind 12-foot or 14-foot fences. It would cause disruption in the housing markets at Gatesville and Bastrop.

However, those who are laid off could get jobs as researchers for the State and Federal agencies, producing reports showing that it's better to get back to the "good old days" or the "good new days," depending on one's point of view.

Dear Sirs:

I would like to get a clipping out of your Nov. 20 issue, on the front page, with reference to Mr. John Ellyson's mishap.

I got acquainted with Mr. Ellyson when they brought him in room 281 last Mon. 9 a.m. Room 280 and 281 is really one large room with a curtain between us, so we are close neighbors.

It is remarkable how well Mr. Ellyson is taking this terrible mishap. He never complains about anything and loves to talk and has a smile on his face for his visitors. I've never seen anything like it and I've learned to love him for it.

I'm a young man too. Mr. Ellyson is just 5 years younger than I am.

I'm inclosing a stamped envelope that you may use, it is addressed to Box 386 at Elgin, Texas, as I plan to make it home for Thanksgiving if the Dr. OK's it.

SU students endorse ICUT

Forty-four student leaders from 32 private colleges in Texas met at Southwestern University at Georgetown Saturday and decided to become an organized student association.

The students elected Ralph Waugh of Austin College as president and authorized him to write the Executive Council of the Independent Colleges and Universities to Texas (ICUT) asking for its endorsement of a student branch within ICUT.

ICUT's Executive Council, with Rice University President Dr. Norman Hackerman serving as president, is scheduled to meet early in December.

Pam Slaughter of Southwestern University, who helped coordinate Saturday's meeting, said that the student leaders decided such an organization was needed among the independent colleges and universities.

"We need to share ideas, and we need an organization for better communication," Miss Slaughter said.

A committee has been established to write some by-laws for the new organization, and the entire group decided to meet again during the spring semester.

Want to be president?

So, you want to run for president!

IF YOU ARE IN EARNEST, a democrat, and really sincere about wanting to be elected, you must:

Support ERA, oppose both the B-1 bomber and S-1, the proposed new Federal criminal code, seek to dismantle the CIA, support normalization of relations with Cuba (but, please, try to avoid this kind of flippancy from Mo Udall: "Any country that can make good cigars can't be all bad."), support boycotts of Rhodesia and South Africa, stand up for the Basques in Fascist Spain, call for amnesty for all the draft evaders and war resisters, oppose deregulation of natural gas, oppose, in fact, the oil industry in all its monopolistic manifestations, refuse to eat lettuce or drink Gallo Hearty Burgundy, seek registration of handguns (call loudly for confiscation, if you like an occasional ovation), promise you'll reopen the investigation of John Kennedy's assassination, agree to sweeping tax reform that would close all the infamous loopholes, call for nationalization of the railroads, weep for the demise of the small family farm (and agree to break up agribusiness), say you'll fire Earl Butz (and Henry Kissinger, too, while you're about it), promise you'll hire one woman for every man and pay her equal wages, promise you'll appoint a woman—"a female Bill Douglas," Fred Harris says — to the Supreme Court, support national health care, support Federalization of welfare payments, agree to establish price controls for monopoly industries, and, of course, work for passage of the Hawkins-Humphrey Full Employment Act.

And the thing to remember, James M. Perry, writing in the National Observer, says you have to say these things as if you really mean them!

We guess that lets us out. There are at least a couple of items there we would gag on.

The gun question

One of the big controversies in this country is over the sale, ownership and registration of guns, mostly pistols.

Frankly, we can't see much evil in registering guns, nor in a more restrictive policy on pistol sales.

ON THE OTHER HAND, if we had tougher laws on the ownership and use of guns by known criminals, a substantial part of our gun troubles would be over. Stiff sentences in speedy trials would have to be part of the program.

No known criminal should be walking around with a gun in his pocket. The only conceivable reason he could have for carrying a weapon would be to use it unlawfully. And, if he used it in a robbery or assault the sentence should come almost automatically, with probation out of the question. Probation, in fact, should not be permitted in any gun case — if we really want to control the use of guns by criminals.

Before tearing the country up with this explosive proposition, why not at least use the laws we have?

Alarming Prison Conditions

WASHINGTON — There is a growing concern in the highest circles of government that many American prisons violate the constitutional rights of inmates.

Conditions behind prison walls are chaotic. The suicide rate among prisoners is alarmingly high. Homosexual rape, extortion, and other forms of violence are rampant. Racial tensions are explosive.

Yet the prison system itself, many experts feel, does little more than exacerbate the situation.

Many correctional institutions are overcrowded, with prisoners herded together like animals. Psychiatric care is woefully inadequate, and the insane mingle freely with the sane.

Prisoners are lorded over by guards, often of low caliber, who are afraid of the inmates and react by treating them brutally. Inmates who attempt to improve themselves and their lot are discouraged and sometimes openly punished.

In many instances, conditions are so bad that prisoners can claim their Constitutional guarantees against "cruel and unusual punishment" have been violated.

The American people, moreover, seem to be turning their faces away from the prisons, much as many good Germans chose to ignore Adolf Hitler's concentration camps.

We recently smuggled our reporter Terry Repak into the ancient and notorious Clinton Prison in Dannemora, N.Y., to check on conditions there. Her experience verified our worst suspicions.

Physical conditions at the 125-year-old maximum security institution were hopelessly deficient: musty brick cell blocks, roach-infested beds, and an exercise yard the size of a grade school playground. Although Clinton's 2,000 inmates are 75 per cent black, our reporter did not see a single black guard or administrator strolling the prison grounds.

More disturbing, however, were the indignities suffered by the inmates under the supervision of the 71-year-old warden J. Edwin LaVallee -- otherwise known as Clinton's "Godfather." Among them were these:

— Harassment of prisoners for their religious and political beliefs. "Non-conformists," we learned, are summarily tossed into the prison's infamous Unit 14, known as "the box."

— False accusations and charges entered against inmates, who are then refused access to their files, are thus unable to defend themselves, and are frequently severely disciplined as a result.

— Obstruction of prisoners' attempts to establish an effective grievance committee, as prescribed by New York law. Several inmates who were active in such a group last year were rewarded with lengthy stays in "the box."

— Blatant interference with the prisoners' mail. Even letters from legal representatives, which are supposed to be sacrosanct, are often held up for weeks while authorities open, read and re-staple them.

— Denial of basic rights and privileges. In one case, a man accused of stabbing an inmate asked the prison chaplain to represent him before a meeting of the authorities. The chaplain received the accused man's letter one month after he had been tried and dispatched to another facility.

Clinton is by no means unique. The United States clearly needs a new prison system, one in which those who are not menaces to society are not locked up with those who are.

Spanish Bases: For months now, American representatives have been negotiating with Spanish diplomats for the renewal of leases on four U.S. military bases in Spain. An "agreement in principle" was reached in October. The United States would gain rights to the bases for five years, in return for loans and grants to Madrid.

Then Generalissimo Francisco Franco's health began to fail, and the matter has been in limbo ever since. Spanish and American representatives have met only once since Franco became ill. At that meeting the Spaniards told the American envoys that nothing could be done until Spain's uncertain leadership situation is cleared up.

That could take some time. Many intelligence analysts anticipate that Spain will erupt in civil war in the wake of Franco's death. Indeed, Spaniards mockingly refer to the Generalissimo's successor, Prince Juan Carlos, as "Juan the short-lived."

The State Department, nevertheless, is convinced the U.S. will be able to close the deal on the bases within a few weeks. Congressional experts have advised the diplomats to wait a while before committing themselves to any new regime.

The Spaniards, incidentally, would get very little in return for the American bases. They will receive about $600 million in loans over the five-year period, and about $16 million a year in grants. There will be an intense, negative reaction in Spain, some analysts predict, when those figures become public there.

Pentagon Plumbers: At the Pentagon, investigators are busy looking for leakers again.

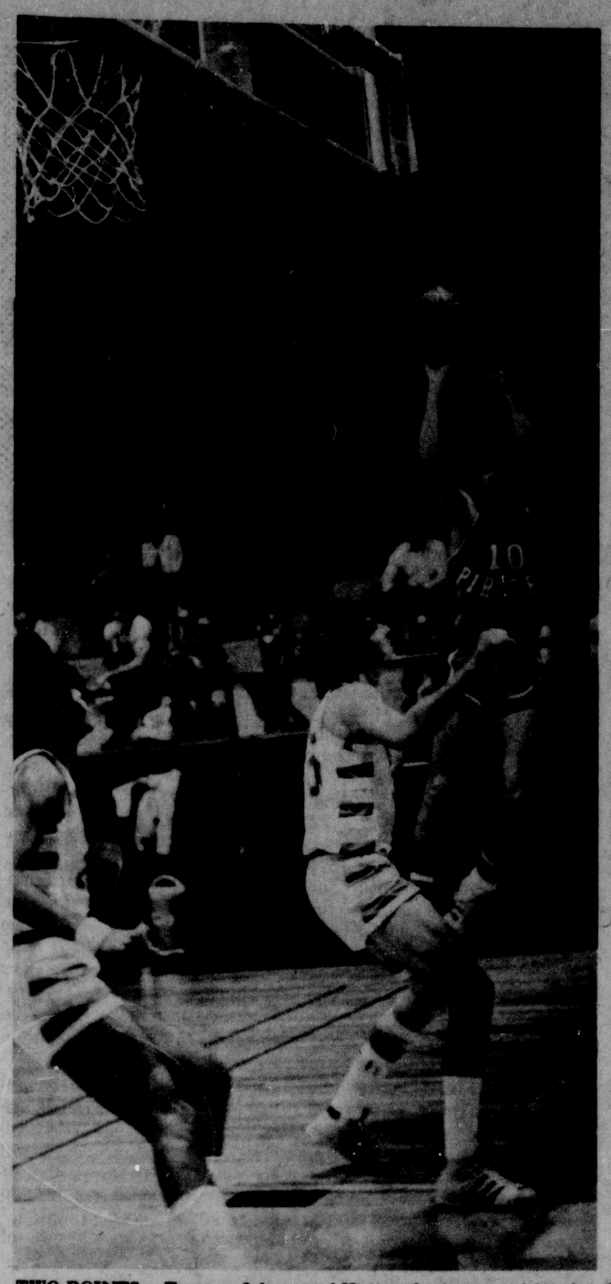

Someone at the Defense Department blew the whistle on duck-hunting trips paid for by military lobbyists, and now the brass hats are trying to find out who "tattled" on them.

One innocent employee who is being checked is Ernest Fitzgerald. He is the man who first told Congress about the incredible cost overruns on the C-5A cargo plane. For being a good citizen, he has been harassed ever since.

PLAN FOR SUNFLOWERS

An agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service advises farmers interested in growing sunflowers in 1976 to begin planning now. Careful consideration must be given to the planting area since problems arise when attempting to desiccate the crop. The crop should not be planted on the same land year after year. And only high quality seed should be planted. Although the potential for sunflowers is great in Texas, there are still many unanswered questions about proper management practices.

Basketball scores

The Georgetown Eagle Varsity basketball team dropped its first two games of the season, while the Junior Varsity won two. The Varsity lost its first game to Del Valle 54-65 here on the home court. The Eagles were leading the Cardinals 29-28 at the half after a big second quarter in which they outscored the opposition by 7 points.

It was in the fourth quarter that the Eagles lost the game. In that stanza they were outscored by a margin of 9 points. Coach Doug Parker said, "We got beat on the boards, and we were hurt by our high turnover rate."

The Eagles' shooting percentage was pretty fair, especially for so early in the season. They made 47.9% of their shots from the field, and put in 66% of their free throw opportunities.

Alfred Girard tied Cardinal Brian O'Rourke for high point honors in the game with 19. Also, for the Eagles Larry Maynard had 14 points, and David Giese had 11. Girard led the Eagles in rebounds with 8.

The Eagles lost their game here last Friday to the Round Rock Dragons 44-72. They got 22 points behind in the first quarter, and were just never able to overcome the big lead of the Dragons. The Eagles did have a big third quarter in which they outscored the Dragons 16-8.

The Dragons had great shooting percentages, getting 54% from the field and 77.7% from the free throw line.

Larry Maynard was the high point man for the Eagles with 13, while David Giese had 12. Ron Sanfilippo had 30 and David Cluck 28 for the Dragons. Alfred Girard pulled down 8 rebounds for the Eagles.

The Georgetown Junior Varsity defeated the Del Valle JV 55-51. The Eagle JV's built up a 33-23 lead in the first half, were outscored 10-17 in the third quarter, and then won the fourth quarter 12-11, to preserve the victory.

Georgetown had a pretty good 37% shooting from the field, but scored only 33% from the free throw line. Joe Jenkins led all scorers with 22 points. Rob Stephenson had 9 points for the Eagles and Mark Edwards had 8. Coleman scored 21 points for Del Valle. Jenkins led in rebounds for the Eagles with 12.

The Eagle Junior Varsity defeated Round Rock 49-36. It was Jenkins again leading the way in scoring for the Eagles with 22 points. Ronnie Wagner had 9 for Georgetown and Mark Edwards had 7. Jenkins and Wagner each had 8 rebounds.

The Eagle JV's trailed Round Rock at the half 29-30, but it was in the third period that they really broke out when they outscored the Dragons 12-2. From then on they were in control of the game. The Eagle JV's improved their free throw percentage over their first game, with a 58% average for the Round Rock game compared to 33% in the Del Valle game.

Basketball program planned for area elementary schoolers

Georgetown area youngsters in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades who want to learn about and play basketball can do so through a newly-formed Youth League Basketball program.

Players may register Monday through December 12 by submitting to local churches and schools a form to be distributed in the schools and in the Sunday SUN.

A $4.00 fee will be charged to cover the cost of player insurance and game T-shirts.

The new program is being organized for the Georgetown area by local churches and businesses.

To be eligible for participation, a youngster must play on his own church's team. The youth must be a member of and have a record of regular attendance at the sponsoring church.

Those not eligible to play as members of a church-sponsored team may be assigned to teams by random drawing.

Age groups established for the program are as follows:
4th grade girls — Maximum age, 10.
4th grade boys — Maximum age, 10.
5th gradesgirls — Maximum age, 11.
5th grade boys — Maximum age, 11.

6th grade boys — Maximum age, 12.

(All ages computed as of the previous September 1.)

Where age of a youngster does not correspond with the proper grade, it is in some cases possible to obtain permission for the child to play with his classmates.

According to Youth Basketball's official guidelines, the organization is dedicated to helping provide training to strengthen the physical, mental, and moral character of its participants and to allow youngsters to participate in organized basketball under responsible supervision.

The organization will be governed by a Board of Directors and a Youth Basketball Committee.

The fee for the program will cover a mandatory insurance policy for each player.

Games will consist of two fifteen-minute halves and a three-minute half-time.

Each half will consist of three 5-minute periods with one-minute rests between each period.

Practice is set to begin January 3, with all games and practices to be held on Saturday mornings.

Dr. Templeton speaks at SU about crystals

Dr. David H. Templeton, dean of the College of Chemistry at the University of California at Berkeley, will speak at Southwestern University at Georgetown December 2.

Topic of the lecture, "Crystal Structures of Compounds of Xenon," will be presented at 4 p.m. in the faculty lounge of Bishops Memorial Union.

The lecture series is a part of the Robert A. Welch Foundation Lecture Program.

Dr. Templeton, a native of Houston, earned a master degree from the University of Texas at Austin, in the field of chemistry. In 1947 he received a PhD degree in chemistry at the University of California at Berkeley, for studies of nuclear reactions and radioactive isotopes. That same year he joined the faculty at Berkeley and started an X-ray diffraction laboratory.

Before that time he was head of the Analytical Division of the Metallurgical Laboratory of the University of Chicago, a part of the Manhattan Project.

Dr. Templeton has been a John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Fellow in 1954 and again in 1969. He has been chairman of the Committee on Chemical Crystallography of the National Research Council, and vice chairman of the U.S.A. National Committee for Crystallography.

One of the first to emphasize in crystallography the importance of the dispersion effects of electrons outside the K shell, Templeton discovered the "polar dispersion error" which can seriously affect the analysis of certain crystals which contain heavy atoms.

The public is invited to attend the lecture.

Colleen Whorrall

Colleen Whorrall is honor guest

Colleen Whorrall, a senior at Georgetown High School, has been selected as the Georgetown Study Club's guest of honor for the month of November.

Colleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whorrall, has participated in many clubs and organizations throughout her high school career. She was a member of Blue Wings her freshman and sophomore years; FHA her freshman year; and is currently a member of the Drill Team and Talon Staff.

Colleen has been a member of the choir all four years of high school, serving as librarian her sophomore and junior years, and treasurer her senior year. She has belonged to Spectrum, the pop choir, her junior and senior years.

She was the choir's homecoming nominee.

Colleen, an active member of St. Helen's Catholic Church, plans to attend Southwestern University after graduation.

Absentee voting hours set in Leander bond election

Absentee voting in the Leander Independent School District's $1.176 million bond election will be held from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. through December 11 in the school administration building on West Street in Leander.

If passed, the bond issue would raise the district's overall tax rate from $1.55 to $1.75 per $100 assessed value.

The district assesses tax on 79% of appraised value, charging $1.25 for maintenance and operating expenses and 3% for debt service.

The proposed bond issue would tack an extra 20¢ onto the debt service tax bringing the overall figure to $1.75.

Projects proposed for funding by the bond issue include the following major construction, addition, repair, and land purchase activities:

•Construction of—

A sanitary sewer sytem and wastewater treatment plant.

New football stadium with aluminum seats and an all-weather track.

New athletic field house, next to the proposed new stadium.

New vehicle maintenance facility.

Two asphalt tennis courts at the Leander High School.

Concrete curbing and gutter along West Street.

•Addition of—

Six permanent classrooms to the Faubion Elementary School in Cedar Park.

Four one-room temporary buildings to the Leander Elementary School, to be connected with covered walkways.

•Major repairs to the Leander Elementary School.

Purchase of land—

Approximately 50 acres for the proposed stadium, field house, vehicle maintenance facility, and possibly a second Leander high school.

Construction of that second facility was contemplated in an earlier bond proposal at an estimated cost of $3.49 million, but was dropped from the proposal which will be submitted to the voters.

It is also proposed in this program, however, that land be purchased for construction of a new elementary school.

Election day is set for December 13, but absentee votes will be collected through December 11.

LOANS UP IN FARM CREDIT SYSTEM —Farmers in the United States are borrowing more money than ever from their own banking system, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Loans made through the Farm Credit System, which is made up entirely of farmers and farmer cooperatives, were up almost 20 per cent for the year ending June 30 than a year ago

INSULATION REDUCES HEATING COSTS — Protect yourself from high heating costs this winter by putting insulation in the right places in your home, says an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. A home that is completely insulated can cost 20 to 50 per cent less to heat than an uninsulated one. The most important area to insulate in the home is the attic floor since warm air rises. Insulating the home can be a do-it-yourself job, using batt type insulation at least six inches thick or having an "R" value of 22.

Five wonderful words

What are five of the most wonderful words a parent can hear?

I know what they are, because I heard them. They were not said to me, although I think — I hope — my own children would say them, if they only thought about it.

But then, I didn't say them to my parents either.

I heard about them from someone else as we sat around a table in candlelight, friends sharing an evening. One couple had a son leaving for college early the next morning.

Was he all ready? Oh, yes. Would they be sad to see him go? The wife smiled. Not really. There were so many things she could do with her time. Besides, she felt good about his going. They had already said their good-byes.

"He called us into his bedroom," she said, "and told us how much he appreciated all the things we had done for him." Then she added, "He said: 'Thank you for raising me.' "

The image of the raw and wiggly bundle of humanity that young son had been eighteen years ago came at once to my mind. He had come a long way since then. He had, indeed, much to thank them for.

But all of us make that journey. No one does it unaided. Why do so few of us remember to say those five words Thank you for raising me?

BY MRS. J. E. CASKEY

Mrs. Joe Maines and Jayme Rhoades were shopping in Georgetown Saturday.

Herbert W. Smart of Austin and James Dock Smart of Rosenberg spent the Thanksgiving holiday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Smart.

Mrs. Gene Milton of Killeen spent Sunday in the Ashabranner home and attended the Young Anniversary celebration that afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Campbell of Killeen visited Mrs. W. D. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Caskey Monday.

Mrs. Jim Redd and daughter, Teri, and Terrie Miller of Red Oak visited Mrs. Joe Whittenberg during the weekend.

The Sunshine Singers from the Mexia State Home presented a wonderful program at the Methodist Church Sunday night. Those who did not attend the program certainly missed a lot of good music. A chili supper was served before the program.

Mrs. Betty Fox's third grade class and Mrs. Lucille Lewis fourth grade presented a Thanksgiving program at the last PTA meeting. Special recognition was given Mrs. Pam Syers and Mrs. Linda Futrell for their organization of the Fall Festival.

Charlotte Futrell was presented an award for the individual getting the most memberships. Mrs. Ann Cantwells sixth grade class won $5 for the class obtaining the most members. Mrs. Nancy Stewart was membership chairman.

The fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church was the scene of a very enjoyable occasion Sunday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Young were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary by the Florence Community. Miss Patty Young of Port Neches, granddaughter was in charge of the guest register where 170 were registered. All were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. Young.

The refreshment tables were presided over by Misses Karen, Nancy and Kathy Smith, granddaughters of the Youngs and Mrs. Leonard Parker and Mrs. Scotty Gowdy of Waco, nieces of Mrs. Young. Punch and the three-tiered wedding cake were served from a table covered with lace over gold centered with an arrangement of gold and orange mums and fall flowers. The coffee table was covered with a gold lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of gold mums and fall colors. The gift table was in gold and white.

Guests were there from Austin, Jarrell, Georgetown, Killeen, Waco, Port Neches, Andice, Florence, and Maplewood, Louisiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mullen, Mr. and Mrs. Al Alberts, Mrs. Cathy Heisler, Gary Alberts, and W. L. Wilson spent Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. Gary Mullen in Round Rock.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Rundell are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Chandler of Aba, Missouri.

Douglas Smith and family of Maplewood, Louisiana and Mrs. Jimmy Young, Patty and Ben of Port Neches visited Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Young during the weekend and attended their parents and grandparents anniversary celebration.

Gary Alberts of Fort Worth spent the Thanksgiving holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Al Alberts.

UT man dies near Cedar Park

A University of Texas student was killed early Tuesday in a one-car accident near Cedar Park.

Police said Robert Lewis Reese, 21, of Houston, was killed at 12:30 a. m. when his 1974 Chevrolet pickup, traveling one mile north of the FM 620-U.S. 183 intersection south of Cedar Park, crossed the road and slammed into a tree.

The Cedar Park and Round Rock units of the Williamson County Ambulance Service responded to the call. Working without extrication equipment, the crews relied upon brute force to pry vehicle doors open, freeing the body 45 minutes after the wreck occurred.

Best crime fighter: 'security consciousness'

By George Moneyhun
Staff correspondent of
The Christian Science Monitor
New York

The best place to fight crime is in the home, says a private security expert.

With the U.S. crime rate steadily increasing and city police suffering from budget cutbacks, Ira A. Lipman, president of Guardsmark, Inc., one of the country's biggest private security firms, complains that Americans are not "security conscious" — that "we are making crime too easy for the criminal. We are not so much victims of crime as we are accomplices."

Learning and practicing security procedures in the home — "pre-acting rather than reacting" — would be a strong deterrent to crime, he contends. Such steps do not alleviate the need for attacking the social causes of crime, nor do they take the place of strong law enforcement agencies, but they do make the criminal's job a lot harder, argues Mr. Lipman, who has spent 25 years in Crime prevention work.

Mr. Lipman deplores that so little public attention is focused on personal security measures, and he hits the news media for limiting coverage of the country's crime problem to statistics, prison reform and social needs, while overlooking measures individuals can take to protect themselves.

"More people are buying alarms today," he notes, "but most buy them after they have already been robbed."

The older woman who lives alone, the pensioner who must secure her apartment on a limited income, is the most vulnerable target in our society, says Mr. Lipman. The "wealthy or upper-middle income family is the second biggest target," he says.

Some typical suggestions he makes:

- When taking a short vacation, don't kennel your dog. Leave him at home, and ask a neighbor to care for him. A dog's bark is one of the most effective burglar deterrents.
- A nail or two driven into the window cracks will prevent a window from being raised high enough for an intruder to enter.

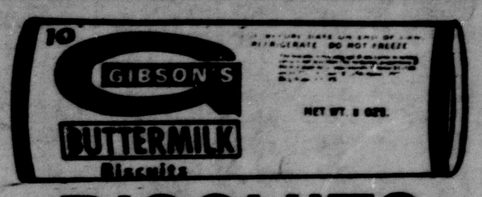

Painting a window closed is even more effective. Mr. Lipman points out there is no foolproof way to stop an experienced burglar, but such steps can slow him down and make his job harder. Time is the burglar's enemy.

- Check the inside and outside of a car before entering it. Get assistance right away if the car does not start. Do not accept unsolicited offers of help, and do not admit a stranger.
- If accosted on a street, surrender your valuables quickly. Do not resist unless threatened with bodily harm.
- A woman living alone should not advertise the fact on her mailbox. Instead of "Miss Mary Jones," put "M. Jones" on the box.
- A telephone answering service is a valuable security precaution when you are away from home. Do not temporarily disconnect your phone when away; that is a tip-off to a potential burglar.
- Do not keep a gun in the house. "It will only get you in trouble," says Mr. Lipman.

Johnson says Round Rock should keep ambulance service

"I am definitely in favor of leaving the ambulance in Round Rock," Williamson County Commissioner W. T. Johnson of the Georgetown precinct said Wednesday.

"There has been an ambulance service in Round Rock for forty or fifty years, and it would be pretty hard to take out of there," Commissioner Johnson continued.

Florence Commissioner Wesley Foust emphasized that some decision concerning the increasing deficit spending involved in maintaining the service must be made during December, when contracts for the service come up for renewal.

This probably means the Commissioners will try to settle the issue, which includes the possibility of moving the county ambulance unit from Round Rock, during the scheduled December 8 meeting of the Commissioners' Court.

All units operate at a deficit, depending upon county support to maintain the service. The county subsidy enables the service to charge between $35 and $45 for ambulance calls which cost a county-wide average of about $90.

But the Round Rock ambulance unit is spending nearly twice as much money as any other unit in the county, making it the logical focus of any attempt to cut expenditures.

Besides the possibility of moving the Round Rock ambulance to Georgetown, a possibility which would decrease the number of employees needed and enable those remaining to receive additional on-the-job training by working in conjunction with the Georgetown hospital, other options are being explored.

"I think we'll get some help from Round Rock," Commissioner Johnson said, referring to the possibility of having that city pay salaries for one or two of the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT's) operating the ambulance in Round Rock.

Having the Round Rock unit handled by volunteers, as the Florence unit is operated, would save the county $2700 monthly in salaries. This option could only be taken, however, if enough Round Rock citizens volunteered to train and serve as EMT's.

Despite the financial problems encountered during this first year of county-supported ambulance service, James Simonson, director of the service, is optimistic about its past and future.

He sees the program as a progressive one to be proud of, among the first in a trend toward comprehensive area-wide ambulance coverage. It is reasonable to expect some problems during the first year, to get the program straightened out, Simonson says. But he feels that Williamson County's first year in the ambulance business has supplied the experience needed to produce a capable, efficient ambulance service.

★Maresh and Lott to run

Vance further stated that under no circumstances would he run for re-election."

Besides having a private law practice, Maresh is presently the Georgetown Municipal Court Judge. He had previously served as Assistant County Attorney for six and a half years and then held the four-year position of County Attorney.

A Williamson County native, Maresh holds B. A. and L. L. B. Degrees as a graduate of the University of Texas School of Law at Austin. As a U. S. Marine Corps veteran of the Korean War, Maresh now holds the rank of Lt. Colonel and is Commanding Officer of the Marine Law Unit he organized in Austin. Maresh is also chairman of a district State Bar committee.

Lott, another graduate of the UT School of Law, has served as Assistant Attorney General of Texas, Assistant County Attorney of Williamson County, and as President of the Williamson County Bar Association.

During World War II he served in the Security Intelligence Corps for four years.

Presently engaged in private practice, Lott is also actively engaged in numerous civic organizations, including the Georgetown Lion's Club and Georgetown Community Chest, the American Cancer Society, the Masons and both the Girl Scout and Boy Scout Associations.

1976 will see several other offices up for grabs, including the one of high sheriff. August Bosshard, encumbent, told the SUN he will definitely be a candidate. "I have to eat," he explained. Bosshard is considered to be a hard-working, dedicated man and observers believe he will be hard to beat.

All constables will have to run to keep their jobs next year, as will Tax Assessor-Collector William P. Buck, who is expected to ask another term.

Precincts One and Three — Georgetown and Granger — will hold races in the May primary.

Offices of the county and district attorneys also will be voted on during the May 1 elections.

General Meeting reports progress on Bicentennial

Georgetown's plans for celebrating the nation's 200th anniversary of freedom from Britain continue to grow and blossom as July 4 draws near.

Lynn Burnette and Joann Morse gave progress reports on current projects Tuesday night at the Bicentennial General Meeting. Projects in the preliminary stages were also discussed.

The Rev. James Ham, pastor of South Jonestown Baptist Church, requested the cooperation of the Bicentennial General Committee in supporting the Bicentennial Super Service planned by the Williamson County Baptist Association for Sunday night, July 4, 1976. He said since the "country was founded on religious principles" the highlight of the day should be a religious service with a Christian singer such as Jeannie C. Riley or Connie Smith giving a testimony and singing. The program will start about 7 p.m. in the high school football field or the rodeo arena.

An old-fashioned country fair with exhibits is scheduled for Friday, July 2, in San Gabriel Park. Exhibits will include baked goods, farm equipment, flowers, plants, needlework, arts and crafts, livestock, antiques and cars.

There will be a remote broadcast of Czech and Mexican music from San Gabriel Park during the Fourth of July Picnic.

A new project approved by City Manager Leo Wood is the painting of the fire hydrants to resemble American history characters.

A Georgetown Bicentennial medal will be struck in solid bronze in a limited edition. On one side will be the Georgetown Bicentennial logo consisting of the outline of the state of Texas, an oak tree and the three rivers coming together with a star marking Georgetown. Lettering will be "U. S. Bicentennial, 1776-1976, Georgetown, Texas."

The reverse side will be divided into three parts, representing a triangular approach to comemorating the nation's independence, "Heritage, Horizons and Festival." Heritage will be represented by the log cabin, Horizons, by the bandstand and Festivals by three flags.

An almanac, Bicentennial Showcase, will be published in cooperation with the Bicentennial Commission, which will provide a concise six-page typed history of Williamson County for inclusion in the almanac. Those placing ads in the almanac will be aiding the Bicentennial Commission, because they will gross 10 percent of the receipts.

The Mayor's Bicentennial Ball is scheduled for 8 p. m. December 31 at the San Gabriel Community Center, with music provided by the Country Blues. A steak and egg breakfast will be served at midnight. Lions' guest explains Veterans Land Program

Provisions of a program making long-term, low-interest loans available to Texas veterans for land purchases were outlined to the Georgetown Noon Lions Wednesday by J. D. Cannon of the state Veterans Administration.

Cannon, a Veterans Consultant for the agency's Land Board, told the Lions that more than 57,000 persons have purchased over 4 million acres of Texas land through the Veterans Land Program since 1949.

According to Cannon, the program establishes 40-year loans of up to $15,000 at 5½% interest for eligible veterans.

The Land Board is financed, Cannon said, through the sale of municipal-type bonds. Since the program's inception, more than $400 million in bonds have been sold, and Cannon said the Board is authorized to sell another $100 million worth of bonds to continue loans.

Originally, veterans had to purchase at least a 20-acre tract at no less than $7500 to qualify for a Land Program loan.

Today the minimum acreage has been dropped to 10 acres, but the Board is prohibited from investing more than $15,000 in tract.

Cannon explained that a veteran must have the following qualifications to be eligible for the program:

— The veteran must have served at least 90 days continuous active military duty since September 16, 1940, unless sooner discharged for reasons of service-connected disability.

— Must have been a bona fide resident of Texas at time of entry into military service or have been a resident for at least five years immediately prior to the filing of the application to purchase.

— Must be a resident of Texas at the time of actually filing an application to purchase, must not have received a dishonorable discharge, and must not have previously participated in the program.

When purchasing, a veteran must acquire at least 10 acres of property with a 30-foot wide access to a public road some where on the property.

Cannon said Land Program loans are a one-time affair. After a veteran makes one purchase through the program loan, he is ineligible for further loans.

A verteran may sell property acquired through the program after three years' ownership, but the sale voids his mineral rights, said Cannon.

Payments on Land Program loans are due semi-annually, in February and August or May and November.

Cannon was introduced to the Lions by Georgetown attorney W. K. McClain, who commented, "This is really a good program for veterans, one that more of them should know about."

Further information on the program can be obtained from the Veterans Land Board in Austin.

Your senses will never be the same.

Voter registration process halted

You can't get a new voter registration card in December.

But the law says you need one.

No voter registration materials are being mailed from County Tax Assessor-Collector William P. Buck's office until notice is received from Secretary of State Mark White's office.

Mailing of new registration forms to Texas voters was required by a 1975 state law. But a suit filed in October by three Grayson County voters has delayed the mailing. The Texas Civil Liberties Union and the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund are backing the suit.

Senate Bill 300, the new voter registration act, calls for a total new sign up every two years. The provision was made to trace persons who have moved and to purge lists of deceased voters.

It required that 1975 applications for new registration cards be mailed to all registered voters between November 5 and December 31, with applications to be returned by January 31.

Witnesses before a three-judge federal court in Austin testified Tuesday that the law would produce declines in general registration throughout the state, especially in minority areas.

As a result, the court expanded the Civil Liberties Union's restraining order into a preliminary injunction pending another Austin hearing Saturday.

Local officials are concerned that any decision upholding the law may not come through until too late to expedite the December 31 deadline.

Aggies subdue Longhorns

Marty Akins was mostly on the bench as the terrific A&M Aggies hung a 20-10 win on the University of Texas Longhorns at Kyle Field Friday afternoon. It was a terrific battle throughout, with the Aggies always holding a slim lead from early in the first quarter.

The win puts pressure on the Aggies and the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, who meet in a nationally televised game next week, with the winner going to the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

OUR RECENT STRAW VOTE (which ended 0 to 0.) in this column flushed out two of the potential candidates — Bill Lott and Tim Maresh — both, of course, of Georgetown. Maresh came by Wednesday to announce his intentions. Lott called later to say he definitely would be in the race. Nothing from Taylor where Jack Barkley is said to be calculating.

County Commissioners, shocked at the cost of providing ambulance service from four bases — Taylor, Georgetown, Round Rock and Cedar Park — are trying to devise some system to save money. The solution they are now eyeing is to eliminate Round Rock, giving extra responsibility to Cedar Park and Georgetown. From an expense standpoint, Round Rock is the least efficient operation in the county.

Round Rock is understandably upset at the prospect and I share the concern.

IT IS A DARN SHAME that our federal government, by ridiculous guidelines, got us into this costly mess. Commissioners throughout the United States ought to get together and tell the Feds that, "since you are running the show, go ahead and fund it," and see how the ball bounces.

I told Bill Williams that the program ought to be financed by the Washington crowd and run from local post offices, which are highly dedicated to public service. Leo Wood, who was within earshot, commented that he didn't think that would be a good idea. "By the time Williams got through combing his hair," Leo claimed, "the victim would bleed to death."

Williams, a trim, athletic, good-looking guy takes considerable care with his grooming, from hair to shoes, and absorbs some good-humored kidding. During the summer he wore a white suit part of the time, which gave one of the fellows cause to dub him Sir Lancelot. And that fostered that idea that the post office just had to be Camelot!

It's a great life if you don't lose your sense of humor.

Or, simply adjust to a world of nuts.

Electricity price hike due

City expected to pass along LCRA surcharge

Get set to see approximately two dollars added regularly to your city electricity bill from January through at least April.

That's the word from city officials, who were told last week that the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) somehow managed to shortchange itself $41,199.42 on Georgetown's account since July of 1974.

LCRA produces electrical power for Georgetown and 29 other municipal and electrical cooperative customers. The city distributes the power on its own lines to local residents.

In a meeting November 21 in Austin, the Authority told City Manager Leo Wood and Councilmen Harry Gold and Wiggy Shell that it needs the $40,000-plus to stay on an even financial keel and to go to the bond market next year to construct coal-fired generating plants.

To get the money, LCRA officials proposed to add one penny and seven-tenths of a cent (1.7 mills) per kilowatt hour to its customer's monthly bills until the loss is recovered.

But LCRA also offered a discount of $1.75 per $100 paid to any customer which agreed to submit the amount asked immediately, along with its November bill from the Authority.

In Georgetown's case, the discount would amount to six percent, meaning the city would actually pay only $38,728, a saving of $2471.97 over long-term payment.

The city decided the discount was well worth immediate payment, and Mayor Joe Crawford said Wednesday that $38,728 will be drawn from a $50,000 utility reserve account and paid to LCRA, along with the amount charged the city for electricity use from October 25 through November 25.

"We put aside the reserve funds for emergency use," Crawford explained, "and I say this is an emergency."

LCRA said the shortfall resulted from constantly increasing costs of natural gas to fuel electricity-generating plants.

According to the Authority, the "fuel adjustment" charge it has been tacking onto bills for over two years (and which is passed along to city customers) simply didn't keep pace with the amount it was charged by the Lo-Vaca Gathering Company for the gas.

From the billing period ending July 25, 1974, the Authority said, through the period ending October 25, 1975, Georgetown was charged $630,507.71 for fuel adjustment.

LCRA says the amount which should have been charged, to allow it to break even, was $671,707.13.

The city agreed that the Authority needs the cash, and said it will make the lump-sum payment.

Which satisfies LCRA, but leaves the city a little short.

To refill the city coffers, Crawford said, the Council will be asked December 8 to approve a 2 mill charge to be added onto monthly electricity bills.

Assistant City Manager W. L. Walden said that on an average residential consumer's usage of about 1000 kwh per month, the "surcharge" would amount to approximately a two dollar hike.

The exact amount per month will vary with usage, but electricity bills will rise noticeably.

Walden said the hike would probably be added to city bills in the form of an addition to the fuel adjustment charge, which is a percentage of the "base rate" the city charges for electricity.

In past months, the fuel adjustment rate has gone as high as 100% of the base rate charge.

City Manager Wood did not rule out the possibility that the rate might climb that high again, but said that the city has tentatively planned to eliminate the 2 mill surcharge during any month in which the fuel adjustment charge is 100% of base rate or above.

Walden gave the following example to illustrate the effect of the surcharge: if you used 1000 kilowatt hours of electricity from October 15-November 15, you paid $32.94 for it.

If the fuel adjustment rate of 100% in effect during that month period remained the same, and you once again used 1000 kwh, you would pay $34.94.

At that rate, Crawford speculated, it might take five to six months to make up the city's loss.

But he added that it could take longer, and expressed the hope that the surchage would be low enough to avoid a burden on city customers until it is dropped.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS — J. H. "Buster" Compton and hospital administrator Ken Poteete discuss plans for next week's kickoff of the Georgetown Area Hospital Development Fund Drive. Compton will head the campaign to generate $350,000 in contributions to secure a Farmers Home Administration loan for construction of a new hospital.

Hospital fund drive set

Preparations for a $350,000 fund drive to construct a new Georgetown Area Hospital are almost complete, and the bandwagon should be ready to roll next week, drive chairman J. H. "Buster" Compton announced Wednesday.

Compton said, "We contacted potential campaign leaders throughout the western part of the county this week, and so far not one person contacted has turned me down."

That opens the door, Compton continued, to get the Hospital Development Fund drive under way this week and hopefully to secure a $2.95 million construction loan from the Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) by March.

The loan, if it can be secured, would fund construction of a new 60-bed hospital east of IH 35 and north of ranch road 2243.

FmHA officials reportedly have committed themselves firmly to the loan, if the Georgetown Hospital Authority (GHA) can come up with $350,000 to fulfill the agency's "community participation" requirements.

Under the 1974 Rural Development Act, the FmHA was given authority to loan money for the construction of hospitals.

But FmHA officials have stipulated that the Hospital Authority must come up with 25% of a $2.95 million construction loan, or about $740,000.

Assets owned by Georgetown doctors, including the present hospital, the 6-acre site of the proposed hospital, and medical equipment will earn the GHA $426,000 immediate credit toward the 25% figure. During the time it would take to construct the hospital, GHA officials say the value of the credit would rise to $525,000, leaving the Authority approximately $225,000 short of the required amount.

The hospital itself would be a three-story structure east of I35 and north of R.M. 2243, which would accommodate at least 60 beds. Eventually the hospital could be expanded to include two more floors and up to 150 beds.

According to a master plan for the facility, additional medical buildings could also be constructed nearby, and a doctors' clinic would be built adjacent to the hospital.

If the FmHA approves the loan, the Hospital Authority would pay the debt service with revenues from hospital operations.

Ken Poteete, adminstrator of the present Georgetown Medical and Surgical Hospital, said plans are being finalized to contact residents in Georgetown, Jarrell, Florence, Liberty Hill, Leander, and other west-end communities for their support.

Week's news in a nutshell

A PROPOSED $40 PER MONTH SALARY INCREASE for all county employees and special adjustments not to exceed $140 monthly will be discussed at a public hearing December 8 at 10 a.m. Williamson County Commissioners decided during a special meeting Monday.

Final action was taken during the meeting to advertise for new heating and air conditioning systems and duct work for the renovation of the old Farmers' State Bank building west of the square on Austin Avenue. The building will be used by Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

Carpentry work dividing the interior into offices has already begun, but lighting, heating and air conditioning costs were above expected amounts.

UNITED WAY'S 1975 CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFULLY REACHED its primary goal of $18,141 with $500 to spare this week.

"We are extremely pleased," said Drive Chairman Frank Hubbard, "but we want everyone to know that we're not finished yet." Hubbard explained to know that we're not finished yet." Hubbard explained that the drive is really a never ending one, and those who have not been contacted and wish to give may do so at any time.

"We feel this drive has been a successful one, not just because we have come near the budget goal, but also because over one hundred people participated in the effort. It was a community response to community needs," said Linda Graves.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE A 200-PLUS-POUND BELL fished up from the San Gabriel River? And cracked, like a certain fixture in Philadelphia?

Well, that's what Dale Conway of Georgetown found Saturday when he happened to gaze over a wall along the river's west bank in San Gabriel Park.

Police received a report Monday that the Phi Delta Theta fraternity at Southwestern University was missing a bell and thought it might be the one Conway found.

Phil Delta Theta member Robert Skinner confirmed that report and said the fraternity would try to identify the bell.

Maresh and Lott will run for District Judge in 1976

Two prominent Georgetown lawyers stepped firmly forward this week and announced their intentions of running for district judge in the democratic primaries of 1976.

Municipal Judge Tim Maresh made it official by signing up at the courthouse and turning in a standard political announcement to county newspapers.

Bill Lott telephoned to say he would run but his official announcement would not be made for several weeks.

At least one other lawyer in the county, Jack Barkley of Taylor, the senior member of the Barkley and Cutcher law firm, is believed to be seriously considering the race.

All three men have had considerable experience in county politics and are regarded as successful and capable lawyers.

Announcements that long-time encumbent Judge Kirby Vance has no plans to run in the May 1 primary have left the office wide open to other candidates.

"District Judge Kirby Vance has made it known for some time that he will not seek re-election to his post and has personally told me this week that he plans to retire at the end of his present term," Maresh said, adding "Judge

Twice in 17 days the President's life was threatened. And what was the response in Congress? "Curtail the President's public appearances!"

Not "Lock up the loonies." Congress wants to "lock up the President."

TWO SCREW-LOOSE WOMEN pulled guns, and what was the response in Congress? "Write another law!"

What we should be doing is enforcing the laws we already have against the "misuse" of guns.

First, let's understand that new laws limiting gun sales would not have disarmed Patricia Hearst or Squeaky Fromme or the frustrated Sara Jane Moore.

The weapons available to Patricia Hearst were already outlawed—but outlaws got them anyway.

Squeaky Fromme's gun was not a "Saturday Night Special": it was a Colt .45 sold as "army surplus" in 1913.

The .38 used by Sara Jane Moore was not bought over-the-counter. It was bought earlier the same day from "a private collector."

SO ANOTHER LAW would not have prevented these social misfits from arming themselves.

For society angrily to "get mad at the gun" is as silly as blaming the sun for your burn.

The recent rash of madness derives precisely from that kind of "substitution" lunacy.

"Pay attention to me," the sickies cry out. "Somebody please notice me!"

And if they demand that attention at the point of a gun, it's because the headlines say that is the quickest way.

Shall we then pass a law against headlines?

Cook County, Ill., averages a thousand major crimes every day.

Cook County's State Attorney Bernard Carey says the most vicious and dangerous criminals are the armed robbers.

THEY ARE RESPONSIBLE for most of the state's "unsolved" killings. And upwards of 70% and perhaps as many as 95% of all armed robberies are committed by "repeaters."

Carey is urging his state's legislature to lock up permanently — that means a mandatory life sentence which no judge could set aside—anybody convicted of armed robbery for a third time!

With plea bargaining and the misapplication of insanity pleading and the potential for payoffs, there is no better way to expedite the judicial process than with mandatory sentences.

And there is no more certain way to stop repeaters from repeating.

AFTER PATRICIA HEARST was in custody, KGO-TV in San Francisco received a letter expressing support for "Sister Tania." The letter advised Patty Hearst to play it cool, to be patient, "while her father's lawyers bail her out."

It is with such disdain that lawbreakers are sneering at the legal leniency which amplifies to grotesque distortion the rights of wrongdoers.

If mandatory prison sentences for specific crimes are not a cure-all, they would help stop the bleeding.

CIA recruiting: a keyhole view

By Benjamin Welles

Washington

For the last 10 months the CIA has been battered by more bad publicity than in all 28 previous years since its creation in 1947. Has this hurt recruiting?

No, say agency officials — though they concede that the school year has only just begun and that recruiting trends may not be clear until January.

The CIA says it hires "less than 500" young men and women officers a year (apart from clerical staff) of the 4,000 or so who apply. Its size and budget are officially secret, but a good guess would be 15,000 people and $600 million.

Who, then, are the college and graduate students and the young men and women already in jobs who want to join the CIA?

"There's been a marked change down the years," explained a senior official. "In the '50s they came mostly from the Eastern Seaboard and they were products of prep schools and Ivy League colleges. Now they come from all over the country."

In the '50s — when the cold war reduced U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations to black and white — many recruits came from military backgrounds. Duty came before self-questioning; patriotism before doubt. Now, since Vietnam and the Watergate scandal, the CIA's recruits are more "intellectually challenging," says one agency official.

"They ask tough questions: 'What do we do, why do we do it?' They probe, they challenge us. We realize they face stiff peer pressures. So when they do decide to join — they've weighed it and thought it out. They're committed."

Each year top CIA officials at headquarters near Washington list the special skills — engineers, chemists, economic geographers, area specialists, linguists among others — that they will need over the coming year and in what numbers. The lists go out in autumn and spring to regional recruiting offices: Los Angeles; Portland, Oregon; Austin, Texas; Denver; Chicago; New York; and Philadelphia. Headquarters here handles recruiting for the South.

CIA recruiters from the regional offices contact area university-placement offices — and even advertise in leading newspapers, including the New York Times whose revelations of "massive, illegal" activities last December led to investigations both by Vice-President Nelson A. Rockefeller's commission and by Senate and House committees.

Applicants were once interviewed on campus, but anti-Vietnam war feeling ran so high in student circles in the late '60s and early '70s that the bulk of the interviewing process was quietly shifted to nearby federal office buildings.

Applicants now must fill out a 17-page, personal-history form and if accepted must wait up to six months for the intense screening process. Most of those accepted then undergo a year's training (with certain exceptions such as engineers, scientists, etc.).

Not all the CIA's work is "spying." Of

Austin Notebook

AUSTIN — Sitting and watching the news from governmental agencies, one is almost daily required to ask, "What's going on here?"

You read a news story one day that the Texas Youth Council, which has just given its Mountain View facilities at Gatesville to the Texas Department of Corrections, is busy deciding where to help build "community facilities" to take care of youthful Texans who have violated laws.

Then you look in the Elgin Courier and find notice published of a final environmental impact statement on a new Federal Youth Center to be built at old Camp Swift in Bastrop County.

It is to contain what sounds like dormitories of 50 to 60 rooms in a "village-type complex." In all, it will provide rooms for about 300 youthful offenders who are serving short sentences for law violation.

The 300 young people are to be gathered together in this rural setting for education, vocational training and counseling, designed to "increase the social effectiveness of the inmates and to provide them with the necessary skills that will reduce the prospect of their engaging in further criminal activity.

That, of course, was supposed to be what they were doing at Mountain View and at Gatesville State School. A Federal court held that it was better to close down such a facility, and to develop "community" facilities to keep the young offenders close to the families which had failed to keep them on the straight and narrow.

Now we find a Federal agency, building what sounds a whole lot like Mountain View or Gatesville, a few counties away.

It quite naturally makes one wonder whether the Federal agency or the state agency or the federal court is the more advanced. At the very least, what it shows is that experts in the field of juvenile correction differ. Perhaps it would be wise to get some sort of a Coordinating Board, State and Federal Juvenile Corrections Systems.

It could supervise the swapping back and forth of rural correctional and training facilities as the views at the two of the competing agencies change.

It might have some problems. The Bastrop Federal facilities are to have a 12-foot high fence with patrol roads inside and electronic surveillance.

It is possible that when the views of the Texas Youth Council change, because of a change of membership by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, that a 14-foot fence would be required, with bloodhounds or poodles instead of electronic surveillance. In such an event, substantial amounts of taxpayer money could be saved by having the Coordinating Board, with its $200,000-a-year budget, preventing the new agency from tearing down the 12-foot fence and building one of 14-foot height. It could have a public hearing and get evidence about the increasing tallness of teenagers, and decide whether 14 feet is now needed to contain them.

Even if this Coordinating Board should cost $200,000 a year, it could in all probability be funding 50-50 by Federal and State money. Thus, it would be more likely to be influential on the agency which is changing its mind at the moment, be it Federal or State.

It might also be well if this Coordinating Board would have veto power over research projects in this field, and thus reduce the fluctuations in Federal and State thinking on the subject of where best to store young people who have become intolerable in their families and home towns.

Without such coordination, it is entirely possible that the Federal and State penal authorities might fall into the same track at the same time. Then it would be necessary to build a second Mountain View-like "school" for young offenders. And, until the normal oppositeness of viewpoint returns, all of those "community facilities" would be vacant.

The employes of the "community facilities" would have to be quickly retrained to the other point of view, that it is better to keep young offenders behind 12-foot or 14-foot fences. It would cause disruption in the housing markets at Gatesville and Bastrop.

However, those who are laid off could get jobs as researchers for the State and Federal agencies, producing reports showing that it's better to get back to the "good old days" or the "good new days," depending on one's point of view.

I would like to get a clipping out of your Nov. 20 issue, on the front page, with reference to Mr. John Ellyson's mishap.

I got acquainted with Mr. Ellyson when they brought him in room 281 last Mon. 9 a.m. Room 280 and 281 is really one large room with a curtain between us, so we are close neighbors.

It is remarkable how well Mr. Ellyson is taking this terrible mishap. He never complains about anything and loves to talk and has a smile on his face for his visitors. I've never seen anything like it and I've learned to love him for it.

I'm a young man too. Mr. Ellyson is just 5 years younger than I am.

SU students endorse ICUT

Forty-four student leaders from 32 private colleges in Texas met at Southwestern University at Georgetown Saturday and decided to become an organized student association.

The students elected Ralph Waugh of Austin College as president and authorized him to write the Executive Council of the Independent Colleges and Universities to Texas (ICUT) asking for its endorsement of a student branch within ICUT.

ICUT's Executive Council, with Rice University President Dr. Norman Hackerman serving as president, is scheduled to meet early in December.

Pam Slaughter of Southwestern University, who helped coordinate Saturday's meeting, said that the student leaders decided such an organization was needed among the independent colleges and universities.

"We need to share ideas, and we need an organization for better communication," Miss Slaughter said.

A committee has been established to write some by-laws for the new organization, and the entire group decided to meet again during the spring semester.

Want to be president?

So, you want to run for president!

IF YOU ARE IN EARNEST, a democrat, and really sincere about wanting to be elected, you must:

Support ERA, oppose both the B-1 bomber and S-1, the proposed new Federal criminal code, seek to dismantle the CIA, support normalization of relations with Cuba (but, please, try to avoid this kind of flippancy from Mo Udall: "Any country that can make good cigars can't be all bad."), support boycotts of Rhodesia and South Africa, stand up for the Basques in Fascist Spain, call for amnesty for all the draft evaders and war resisters, oppose deregulation of natural gas, oppose, in fact, the oil industry in all its monopolistic manifestations, refuse to eat lettuce or drink Gallo Hearty Burgundy, seek registration of handguns (call loudly for confiscation, if you like an occasional ovation), promise you'll reopen the investigation of John Kennedy's assassination, agree to sweeping tax reform that would close all the infamous loopholes, call for nationalization of the railroads, weep for the demise of the small family farm (and agree to break up agribusiness), say you'll fire Earl Butz (and Henry Kissinger, too, while you're about it), promise you'll hire one woman for every man and pay her equal wages, promise you'll appoint a woman—"a female Bill Douglas," Fred Harris says — to the Supreme Court, support national health care, support Federalization of welfare payments, agree to establish price controls for monopoly industries, and, of course, work for passage of the Hawkins-Humphrey Full Employment Act.

And, the thing to remember, James M. Perry, writing in the National Observer, says you have to say these things as if you really mean them!

We guess that lets us out. There are at least a couple of items there we would gag on.

The gun question

One of the big controversies in this country is over the sale, ownership and registration of guns, mostly pistols.

Frankly, we can't see much evil in registering guns, nor in a more restrictive policy on pistol sales.

ON THE OTHER HAND, if we had tougher laws on the ownership and use of guns by known criminals, a substantial part of our gun troubles would be over. Stiff sentences in speedy trials would have to be part of the program.

No known criminal should be walking around with a gun in his pocket. The only conceivable reason he could have for carrying a weapon would be to use it unlawfully. And, if he used it in a robbery or assault the sentence should come almost automatically, with probation out of the question. Probation, in fact, should not be permitted in any gun case — if we really want to control the use of guns by criminals.

Before tearing the country up with this explosive proposition, why not at least use the laws we have?

Alarming Prison Conditions

WASHINGTON — There is a growing concern in the highest circles of government that many American prisons violate the constitutional rights of inmates.

Conditions behind prison walls are chaotic. The suicide rate among prisoners is alarmingly high. Homosexual rape, extortion, and other forms of violence are rampant. Racial tensions are explosive.

Yet the prison system itself, many experts feel, does little more than exacerbate the situation.

Many correctional institutions are overcrowded, with prisoners herded together like animals. Psychiatric care is woefully inadequate, and the insane mingle freely with the sane.

Prisoners are lorded over by guards, often of low caliber, who are afraid of the inmates and react by treating them brutally. Inmates who attempt to improve themselves and their lot are discouraged and sometimes openly punished.

In many instances, conditions are so bad that prisoners can claim their Constitutional guarantees against "cruel and unusual punishment" have been violated.

The American people, moreover, seem to be turning their faces away from the prisons, much as many good Germans chose to ignore Adolf Hitler's concentration camps.

We recently smuggled our reporter Terry Repak into the ancient and notorious Clinton Prison in Dannemora, N.Y., to check on conditions there. Her experience verified our worst suspicions.

Physical conditions at the 125-year-old maximum security institution were hopelessly deficient: musty brick cell blocks, roach-infested beds, and an exercise yard the size of a grade school playground. Although Clinton's 2,000 inmates are 75 per cent black, our reporter did not see a single black guard or administrator strolling the prison grounds.

More disturbing, however, were the indignities suffered by the inmates under the supervision of the 71-year-old warden J. Edwin LaVallee -- otherwise known as Clinton's "Godfather." Among them were these:

— Harassment of prisoners for their religious and political beliefs. "Non-conformists," we learned, are summarily tossed into the prison's infamous Unit 14, known as "the box."

— False accusations and charges entered against inmates, who are then refused access to their files, are thus unable to defend themselves, and are frequently severely disciplined as a result.

— Obstruction of prisoners' attempts to establish an effective grievance committee, as prescribed by New York law. Several inmates who were active in such a group last year were rewarded with lengthy stays in "the box."

— Blatant interference with the prisoners' mail. Even letters from legal representatives, which are supposed to be sacrosanct, are often held up for weeks while authorities open, read and re-staple them.

— Denial of basic rights and privileges. In one case, a man accused of stabbing an inmate asked the prison chaplain to represent him before a meeting of the authorities. The chaplain received the accused man's letter one month after he had been tried and dispatched to another facility.

Clinton is by no means unique. The United States clearly needs a new prison system, one in which those who are not menaces to society are not locked up with those who are.

Spanish Bases: For months now, American representatives have been negotiating with Spanish diplomats for the renewal of leases on four U.S. military bases in Spain. An "agreement in principle" was reached in October. The United States would gain rights to the bases for five years, in return for loans and grants to Madrid.

Then Generalissimo Francisco Franco's health began to fail, and the matter has been in limbo ever since. Spanish and American representatives have met only once since Franco became ill. At that meeting the Spaniards told the American envoys that nothing could be done until Spain's uncertain leadership situation is cleared up.

That could take some time. Many intelligence analysts anticipate that Spain will erupt in civil war in the wake of Franco's death. Indeed, Spaniards mockingly refer to the Generalissimo's successor, Prince Juan Carlos, as "Juan the short-lived."

The State Department, nevertheless, is convinced the U.S. will be able to close the deal on the bases within a few weeks. Congressional experts have advised the diplomats to wait a while before committing themselves to any new regime.

The Spaniards, incidentally, would get very little in return for the American bases. They will receive about $600 million in loans over the five-year period, and about $16 million a year in grants. There will be an intense, negative reaction in Spain, some analysts predict, when those figures become public there.

Pentagon Plumbers: At the Pentagon, investigators are busy looking for leakers again.

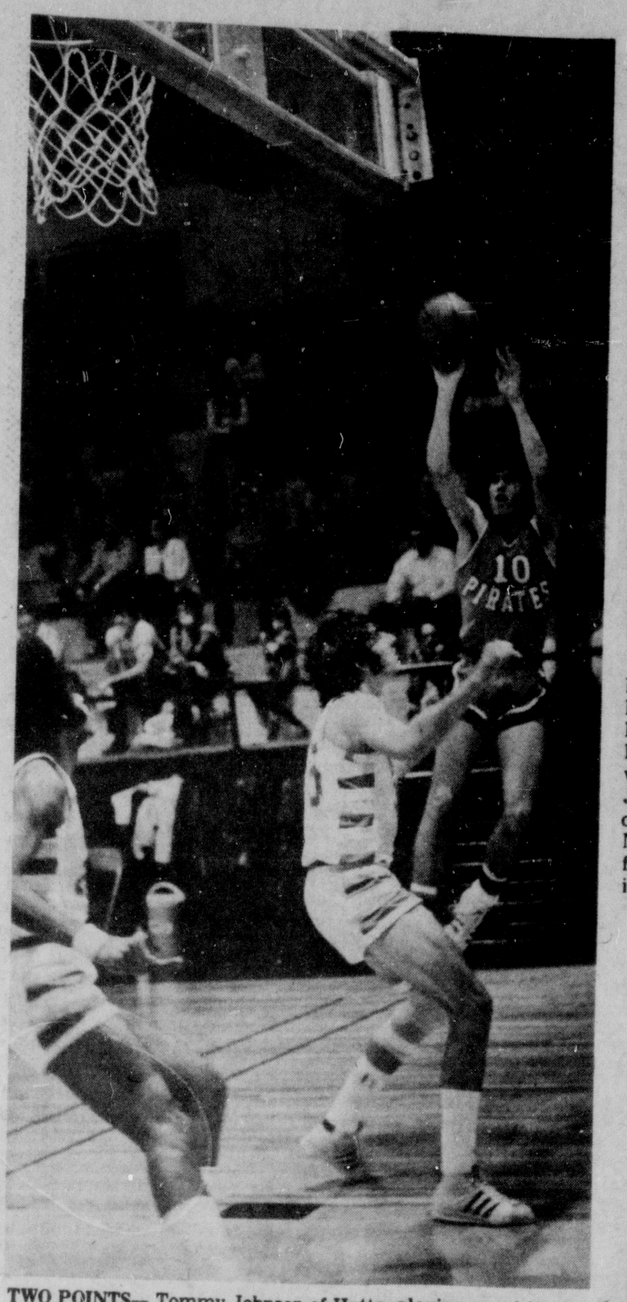

Someone at the Defense Department blew the whistle on duck-hunting trips paid for by military lobbyists, and now the brass hats are trying to find out who "tattled" on them.

One innocent employee who is being checked is Ernest Fitzgerald. He is the man who first told Congress about the incredible cost overruns on the C-5A cargo plane. For being a good citizen, he has been harassed ever since.

Try A Horse: Mail service is so bad in Stockton, Kansas, that the residents petitioned their congressmen to work for the return of the Pony Express. At least then, they say, they'd get their Sunday paper from Topeka.

PLAN FOR SUNFLOWERS

An agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service advises farmers interested in growing sunflowers in 1976 to begin planning now. Careful consideration must be given to the planting area since problems arise when attempting to desiccate the crop. The crop should not be planted on the same land year after year. And only high quality seed should be planted. Although the potential for sunflowers is great in Texas, there are still many unanswered questions about proper management practices.

Basketball scores

The Georgetown Eagle Varsity basketball team dropped its first two games of the season, while the Junior Varsity won two. The Varsity lost its first game to Del Valle 54-65 here on the home court. The Eagles were leading the Cardinals 29-28 at the half after a big second quarter in which they outscored the opposition by 7 points.

It was in the fourth quarter that the Eagles lost the game. In that stanza they were outscored by a margin of 9 points. Coach Doug Parker said, "We got beat on the boards, and we were hurt by our high turnover rate."

The Eagles' shooting percentage was pretty fair, especially for so early in the season. They made 47.9% of their shots from the field, and put in 66% of their free throw opportunities.

Alfred Girard tied Cardinal Brian O'Rourke for high point honors in the game with 19. Also, for the Eagles Larry Maynard had 14 points, and David Giese had 11. Girard led the Eagles in rebounds with 8.

The Eagles lost their game here last Friday to the Round Rock Dragons 44-72. They got 22 points behind in the first quarter, and were just never able to overcome the big lead of the Dragons. The Eagles did have a big third quarter in which they outscored the Dragons 16-8.

The Dragons had great shooting percentages, getting 54% from the field and 77.7% from the free throw line.

Larry Maynard was the high point man for the Eagles with 13, while David Giese had 12. Ron Sanfilippo had 30 and David Cluck 28 for the Dragons. Alfred Girard pulled down 8 rebounds for the Eagles.

The Georgetown Junior Varsity defeated the Del Valle JV 55-51. The Eagle JV's built up a 33-23 lead in the first half, were outscored 10-17 in the third quarter, and then won the fourth quarter 12-11, to preserve the victory.

Georgetown had a pretty good 37% shooting from the field, but scored only 33% from the free throw line. Joe Jenkins led all scorers with 22 points. Rob Stephenson had 9 points for the Eagles and Mark Edwards had 8. Coleman scored 21 points for Del Valle. Jenkins led in rebounds for the Eagles with 12.

The Eagle Junior Varsity defeated Round Rock 49-36. It was Jenkins again leading the way in scoring for the Eagles with 22 points. Ronnie Wagner had 9 for Georgetown and Mark Edwards had 7. Jenkins and Wagner each had 8 rebounds.

The Eagle JV's trailed Round Rock at the half 29-30, but it was in the third period that they really broke out when they outscored the Dragons 12-2. From then on they were in control of the game. The Eagle JV's improved their free throw percentage over their first game, with a 58% average for the Round Rock game compared to 33% in the Del Valle game.

Basketball program planned for area elementary schoolers

Georgetown area youngsters in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades who want to learn about and play basketball can do so through a newly-formed Youth League Basketball program.

Players may register Monday through December 12 by submitting to local churches and schools a form to be distributed in the schools and in the Sunday SUN.

A $4.00 fee will be charged to cover the cost of player insurance and game T-shirts.

The new program is being organized for the Georgetown area by local churches and businesses.

To be eligible for participation, a youngster must play on his own church's team. The youth must be a member of and have a record of regular attendance at the sponsoring church.

Those not eligible to play as members of a church-sponsored team may be assigned to teams by random drawing.

Age groups established for the program are as follows:
4th grade girls — Maximum age, 10.
4th grade boys — Maximum age, 10.
5th gradesgirls — Maximum age, 11.
5th grade boys — Maximum age, 11.

6th grade boys — Maximum age, 12.

(All ages computed as of the previous September 1.)

Where age of a youngster does not correspond with the proper grade, it is in some cases possible to obtain permission for the child to play with his classmates.

According to Youth Basketball's official guidelines, the organization is dedicated to helping provide training to strengthen the physical, mental, and moral character of its participants and to allow youngsters to participate in organized basketball under responsible supervision.

The organization will be governed by a Board of Directors and a Youth Basketball Committee.

The fee for the program will cover a mandatory insurance policy for each player.

Games will consist of two fifteen-minute halves and a three-minute half-time.

Each half will consist of three 5-minute periods with one-minute rests between each period.

Practice is set to begin January 3, with all games and practices to be held on Saturday mornings.

Dr. Templeton speaks at SU about crystals

Dr. David H. Templeton, dean of the College of Chemistry at the University of California at Berkeley, will speak at Southwestern University at Georgetown December 2.

Topic of the lecture, "Crystal Structures of Compounds of Xenon," will be presented at 4 p.m. in the faculty lounge of Bishops Memorial Union.

The lecture series is a part of the Robert A. Welch Foundation Lecture Program.

Dr. Templeton, a native of Houston, earned a master degree from the University of Texas at Austin, in the field of chemistry. In 1947 he received a PhD degree in chemistry at the University of California at Berkeley, for studies of nuclear reactions and radioactive isotopes. That same year he joined the faculty at Berkeley and started an X-ray diffraction laboratory.

Before that time he was head of the Analytical Division of the Metallurgical Laboratory of the University of Chicago, a part of the Manhattan Project.

Dr. Templeton has been a John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Fellow in 1954 and again in 1969. He has been chairman of the Committee on Chemical Crystallography of the National Research Council, and vice chairman of the U.S.A. National Committee for Crystallography.

One of the first to emphasize in crystallography the importance of the dispersion effects of electrons outside the K shell, Templeton discovered the "polar dispersion error" which can seriously affect the analysis of certain crystals which contain heavy atoms.

The public is invited to attend the lecture.

Mrs. Ralph Russell hosts Alpha Iota Theta chapter

Alpha Iota Theta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the home of Mrs. Ralph Russell November 24.

Roll call was answered by telling what that member was doing for Thanksgiving.

Plans were made for a Christmas party.

Mrs. Linda Cisneros presented a program on "Women Who Have Made A Difference," with special emphasis put on women in the community. Those noted were Mrs. R. M. Medley, Mrs. Dave Hicks, Mrs. E. K. Fredericson and Mrs. W.K. McClain for their work as teachers; Drusilla Huffmaster in the arts; Mrs. Don Scarbrough for her work on historical research; and Donna Barksdale, Barbara Pierce and Mrs. Ted Fisher.

There are many other women in the community that deserved recognition, but time did not allow for everyone to be mentioned.

At a previous meeting November 10 at the home of Mrs. Billy Whitfield, Mrs. Hank Franklin presented a program on "Women To Whom We Are Indebted."

Those mentioned were Jane Adams, Florence Nightingale and Susan B. Anthony. The program reminded members that the past as well as the present help in planning the future.

After the meeting a surprise house-warming party honored Mrs. Russell. Each member brought plants.

The Williamson County Council of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority held Pledge Rituals and Rituals of Jewels at the Festive Room of the First National Bank. Alpha Iota Theta was in charge of performing the rituals.

Mrs. Woody Burgess, Mrs. Hank Franklin and Mrs. Larry Krueger of Alpha Iota Theta chapter received their Ritual of Jewels. Other members receiving Ritual of Jewels were Mrs. David Cardona, Mrs. John Parker III, Mrs. George West, and Mrs. William Edmiston. Those receiving Pledge Rituals were Mrs. Arthur Landry, Sarah Jaecks, Judi Kotrla, Sue Mereck and Nancy Webb.

Refreshments were served by Alpha Delta Alpha chapter.

Absentee voting hours set in Leander bond election

Absentee voting in the Leander Independent School District's $1.176 million bond election will be held from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. through December 11 in the school administration building on West Street in Leander.

If passed, the bond issue would raise the district's overall tax rate from $1.55 to $1.75 per $100 assessed value.

The district assesses tax on 79% of appraised value, charging $1.25 for maintenance and operating expenses and 3% for debt service.

The proposed bond issue would tack an extra 20¢ onto the debt service tax bringing the overall figure to $1.75.

Projects proposed for funding by the bond issue include the following major construction, addition, repair, and land purchase activities:

•Construction of—

A sanitary sewer sytem and wastewater treatment plant.

New football stadium with aluminum seats and an all-weather track.

New athletic field house, next to the proposed new stadium.

New vehicle maintenance facility.

Two asphalt tennis courts at the Leander High School.

Concrete curbing and gutter along West Street.

•Addition of—

Six permanent classrooms to the Faubion Elementary School in Cedar Park.

Four one-room temporary buildings to the Leander Elementary School, to be connected with covered walkways.

Four one-room temporary buildings at the Leander Junior-Senior High School.

•Major repairs to the Leander Elementary School.

Purchase of land—

Approximately 50 acres for the proposed stadium, field house, vehicle maintenance facility, and possibly a second Leander high school.

Construction of that second facility was contemplated in an earlier bond proposal at an estimated cost of $3.49 million, but was dropped from the proposal which will be submitted to the voters.

It is also proposed in this program, however, that land be purchased for construction of a new elementary school.

Election day is set for December 13, but absentee votes will be collected through December 11.

LOANS UP IN FARM CREDIT SYSTEM —Farmers in the United States are borrowing more money than ever from their own banking system, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Loans made through the Farm Credit System, which is made up entirely of farmers and farmer cooperatives, were up almost 20 per cent for the year ending June 30 than a year ago.

INSULATION REDUCES HEATING COSTS — Protect yourself from high heating costs this winter by putting insulation in the right places in your home, says an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. A home that is completely insulated can cost 20 to 50 per cent less to heat than an uninsulated one. The most important area to insulate in the home is the attic floor since warm air rises. Insulating the home can be a do-it-yourself job, using batt type insulation at least six inches thick or having an "R" value of 22.

Five wonderful words

What are five of the most wonderful words a parent can hear?

I know what they are, because I heard them. They were not said to me, although I think — I hope — my own children would say them, if they only thought about it.

But then, I didn't say them to my parents either.

I heard about them from someone else as we sat around a table in candlelight, friends sharing an evening. One couple had a son leaving for college early the next morning.

Was he all ready? Oh, yes. Would they be sad to see him go? The wife smiled. Not really. There were so many things she could do with her time. Besides, she felt good about his going. They had already said their good-byes.

"He called us into his bedroom," she said, "and told us how much he appreciated all the things we had done for him." Then she added, "He said: 'Thank you for raising me.' "

The image of the raw and wiggly bundle of humanity that young son had been eighteen years ago came at once to my mind. He had come a long way since then. He had, indeed, much to thank them for.

But all of us make that journey. No one does it unaided. Why do so few of us remember to say those five words Thank you for raising me?

SURE HANDS OF THE SURGEON

A child walks . . . an arm is straightened . . . a growth is removed . . . these and many other things are the result of the fine work of the surgeon. This is an occupation and a labor worthy of appreciation.

A star . . . a new born baby . . . the world itself . . . these and many other things reveal God to us. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork."

Psalm 19, 1

God has wrought a great work. Let us show our love and appreciation by worshipping him in Church

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Young were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary by the Florence Community. Miss Patty Young of Port Neches, granddaughter was in charge of the guest register where 170 were registered. All were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. Young.

Punch and the three-tiered wedding cake were served from a table covered with lace over gold centered with an arrangement of gold and orange mums and fall flowers. The coffee table was covered with a gold lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of gold mums and fall colors. The gift table was in gold and white.

UT man dies near Cedar Park

A University of Texas student was killed early Tuesday in a one-car accident near Cedar Park.

Police said Robert Lewis Reese, 21, of Houston, was killed at 12:30 a. m. when his 1974 Chevrolet pickup, traveling one mile north of the FM 620-U.S. 183 intersection south of Cedar Park, crossed the road and slammed into a tree.

The Cedar Park and Round Rock units of the Williamson County Ambulance Service responded to the call. Working without extrication equipment, the crews relied upon brute force to pry vehicle doors open, freeing the body 45 minutes after the wreck occurred.

Best crime fighter: 'security consciousness'

By George Moneyhun
Staff correspondent of
The Christian Science Monitor

New York

The best place to fight crime is in the home, says a private security expert.

With the U.S. crime rate steadily increasing and city police suffering from budget cutbacks, Ira A. Lipman, president of Guardsmark, Inc., one of the country's biggest private security firms, complains that Americans are not "security conscious" — that "we are making crime too easy for the criminal. We are not so much victims of crime as we are accomplices."

Learning and practicing security procedures in the home — "pre-acting rather than reacting" — would be a strong deterrent to crime, he contends. Such steps do not alleviate the need for attacking the social causes of crime, nor do they take the place of strong law enforcement agencies, but they do make the criminal's job a lot harder, argues Mr. Lipman, who has spent 25 years in Crime prevention work.

Mr. Lipman deplores that so little public attention is focused on personal security measures, and he hits the news media for limiting coverage of the country's crime problem to statistics, prison reform and social needs, while overlooking measures individuals can take to protect themselves.

"More people are buying alarms today," he notes, "but most buy them after they have already been robbed."

The older woman who lives alone, the pensioner who must secure her apartment on a limited income, is the most vulnerable target in our society, says Mr. Lipman. The "wealthy or upper-middle income family is the second biggest target," he says.

Some typical suggestions he makes:

• When taking a short vacation, don't kennel your dog. Leave him at home, and ask a neighbor to care for him. A dog's bark is one of the most effective burglar deterrents.

• A nail or two driven into the window cracks will prevent a window from being raised high enough for an intruder to enter.

Painting a window closed is even more effective. Mr. Lipman points out there is no foolproof way to stop an experienced burglar, but such steps can slow him down and make his job harder. Time is the burglar's enemy.

• Check the inside and outside of a car before entering it. Get assistance right away if the car does not start. Do not accept unsolicited offers of help, and do not admit a stranger.

• If accosted on a street, surrender your valuables quickly. Do not resist unless threatened with bodily harm.

• A woman living alone should not advertise the fact on her mailbox. Instead of "Miss Mary Jones," put "M. Jones" on the box.

• A telephone answering service is a valuable security precaution when you are away from home. Do not temporarily disconnect your phone when away; that is a tip-off to a potential burglar.

• Do not keep a gun in the house. "It will only get you in trouble," says Mr. Lipman.

Johnson says Round Rock should keep ambulance service

"I am definitely in favor of leaving the ambulance in Round Rock," Williamson County Commissioner W. T. Johnson of the Georgetown precinct said Wednesday.

"There has been an ambulance service in Round Rock for forty or fifty years, and it would be pretty hard to take out of there," Commissioner Johnson continued.

Florence Commissioner Wesley Foust emphasized that some decision concerning the increasing deficit spending involved in maintaining the service must be made during December, when contracts for the service come up for renewal.

This probably means the Commissioners will try to settle the issue, which includes the possibility of moving the county ambulance unit from Round Rock, during the scheduled December 8 meeting of the Commissioners' Court.

All units operate at a deficit, depending upon county support to maintain the service. The county subsidy enables the service to charge between $35 and $45 for ambulance calls which cost a county-wide average of about $90.

But the Round Rock ambulance unit is spending nearly twice as much money as any other unit in the county, making it the logical focus of any attempt to cut expenditures.

Besides the possibility of moving the Round Rock ambulance to Georgetown, a possibility which would decrease the number of employees needed and enable those remaining to receive additional on-the-job training by working in conjunction with the Georgetown hospital, other options are being explored.

"I think we'll get some help from Round Rock," Commissioner Johnson said, referring to the possibility of having that city pay salaries for one or two of the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT's) operating the ambulance in Round Rock.

Having the Round Rock unit handled by volunteers, as the Florence unit is operated, would save the county $2700 monthly in salaries. This option could only be taken, however, if enough Round Rock citizens volunteered to train and serve as EMT's.

Despite the financial problems encountered during this first year of county-supported ambulance service, James Simonson, director of the service, is optimistic about its past and future.

He sees the program as a progressive one to be proud of, among the first in a trend toward comprehensive area-wide ambulance coverage. It is reasonable to expect some problems during the first year, to get the program straightened out, Simonson says. But he feels that Williamson County's first year in the ambulance business has supplied the experience needed to produce a capable, efficient ambulance service.

★Maresh and Lott to run

Vance further stated that under no circumstances would he run for re-election."

Besides having a private law practice, Maresh is presently the Georgetown Municipal Court Judge. He had previously served as Assistant County Attorney for six and a half years and then held the four-year position of County Attorney.

A Williamson County native, Maresh holds B. A. and L. L. B. Degrees as a graduate of the University of Texas School of Law at Austin. As a U. S. Marine Corps veteran of the Korean War, Maresh now holds the rank of Lt. Colonel and is Commanding Officer of the Marine Law Unit he organized in Austin. Maresh is also chairman of a district State Bar committee.

Lott, another graduate of the UT School of Law, has served as Assistant Attorney General of Texas, Assistant County Attorney of Williamson County, and as President of the Williamson County Bar Association.

During World War II he served in the Security Intelligence Corps for four years.

Presently engaged in private practice, Lott is also actively engaged in numerous civic organizations, including the Georgetown Lion's Club and Georgetown Community Chest, the American Cancer Society, the Masons and both the Girl Scout and Boy Scout Associations.

1976 will see several other offices up for grabs, including the one of high sheriff. August Bosshard, encumbent, told the SUN he will definitely be a candidate. "I have to eat," he explained. Bosshard is considered to be a hard-working, dedicated man and observers believe he will be hard to beat.

All constables will have to run to keep their jobs next year, as will Tax Assessor-Collector William P. Buck, who is expected to ask another term.

Precincts One and Three — Georgetown and Granger — will hold races in the May primary.

Offices of the county and district attorneys also will be voted on during the May 1 elections.

General Meeting reports progress on Bicentennial

Georgetown's plans for celebrating the nation's 200th anniversary of freedom from Britain continue to grow and blossom as July 4 draws near.

Lynn Burnette and Joann Morse gave progress reports on current projects Tuesday night at the Bicentennial General Meeting. Projects in the preliminary stages were also discussed.

The Rev. James Ham, pastor of South Jonestown Baptist Church, requested the cooperation of the Bicentennial General Committee in supporting the Bicentennial Super Service planned by the Williamson County Baptist Association for Sunday night, July 4, 1976. He said since the "country was founded on religious principles" the highlight of the day should be a religious service with a Christian singer such as Jeannie C. Riley or Connie Smith giving a testimony and singing. The program will start about 7 p.m. in the high school football field or the rodeo arena.

An old-fashioned country fair with exhibits is scheduled for Friday, July 2, in San Gabriel Park. Exhibits will include baked goods, farm equipment, flowers, plants, needlework, arts and crafts, livestock, antiques and cars.

There will be a remote broadcast of Czech and Mexican music from San Gabriel Park during the Fourth of July Picnic.

A new project approved by City Manager Leo Wood is the painting of the fire hydrants to resemble American history characters.

A Georgetown Bicentennial medal will be struck in solid bronze in a limited edition. On one side will be the Georgetown Bicentennial logo consisting of the outline of the state of Texas, an oak tree and the three rivers coming together with a star marking Georgetown. Lettering will be "U. S. Bicentennial, 1776-1976, Georgetown, Texas."

The reverse side will be divided into three parts, representing a triangular approach to comemorating the nation's independence, "Heritage, Horizons and Festival." Heritage will be represented by the log cabin, Horizons, by the bandstand and Festivals by three flags.

An almanac, Bicentennial Showcase, will be published in cooperation with the Bicentennial Commission, which will provide a concise six-page typed history of Williamson County for inclusion in the almanac. Those placing ads in the almanac will be aiding the Bicentennial Commission, because they will gross 10 percent of the receipts.

The Mayor's Bicentennial Ball is scheduled for 8 p. m. December 31 at the San Gabriel Community Center, with music provided by the Country Blues. A steak and egg breakfast will be served at midnight. Tickets are on sale for $6 per person from members of the Bicentennial Commission and at the SUN office. It is an optional costume ball.

Lions' guest explains Veterans Land Program

Provisions of a program making long-term, low-interest loans available to Texas veterans for land purchases were outlined to the Georgetown Noon Lions Wednesday by J. D. Cannon of the state Veterans Administration.

Cannon, a Veterans Consultant for the agency's Land Board, told the Lions that more than 57,000 persons have purchased over 4 million acres of Texas land through the Veterans Land Program since 1949.

According to Cannon, the program establishes 40-year loans of up to $15,000 at 5½% interest for eligible veterans.

The Land Board is financed, Cannon said, through the sale of municipal-type bonds. Since the program's inception, more than $400 million in bonds have been sold, and Cannon said the Board is authorized to sell another $100 million worth of bonds to continue loans.

Originally, veterans had to purchase at least a 20-acre tract at no less than $7500 to qualify for a Land Program loan.

Today the minimum acreage has been dropped to 10 acres, but the Board is prohibited from investing more than $15,000 in tract.

Cannon explained that a veteran must have the following qualifications to be eligible for the program:

— The veteran must have served at least 90 days continuous active military duty since September 16, 1940, unless sooner discharged for reasons of service-connected disability.

— Must have been a bona fide resident of Texas at time of entry into military service or have been a resident for at least five years immediately prior to the filing of the application to purchase.

— Must be a resident of Texas at the time of actually filing an application to purchase, must not have received a dishonorable discharge, and must not have previously participated in the program.

When purchasing, a veteran must acquire at least 10 acres of property with a 30-foot wide access to a public road some where on the property.

Cannon said Land Program loans are a one-time affair. After a veteran makes one purchase through the program loan, he is ineligible for further loans.

A verteran may sell property acquired through the program after three years' ownership, but the sale voids his mineral rights, said Cannon.

Payments on Land Program loans are due semi-annually, in February and August or May and November.

Cannon was introduced to the Lions by Georgetown attorney W. K. McClain, who commented, "This is really a good program for veterans, one that more of them should know about."

Further information on the program can be obtained from the Veterans Land Board in Austin.
